Donna (Younkin) Logan's Notebooks

In memory of Donna (Younkin) Logan
January 4, 2006

From the late 1980s until 1996, Donna (Younkin) Logan organized her research findings into three-ring binders devoted to many of the earliest Younkin pioneers of southwestern Pennsylvania: Henry, Jacob, Frederick, John, Herman as well as Rudolph of Ohio, and cousins in Northampton County, PA. After Donna's untimely death on January 4, 2006, Donna's sister Jean entrusted genealogist Mark A. Miner with Donna's three-ring binders. The expectation was that Younkin cousins would scan the binders in high resolution and share the binders electronically and widely.

Donna's sister Jean and her husband Jim Miller initially scanned the four volumes of Jacob Younkin books. From 2018 to 2020, many Younkin cousins helped with the scanning of thousands of pages in Donna's other three-ring binders. Linda Marker of Rockwood, PA placed the resulting folders of JPEG graphic image files in a OneDrive folder. She distributed links to the OneDrive folder online at the National Younkin Younken Youngkin Family Reunion page on Facebook.

In late 2024, Mark T. Youngkin combined hundreds of image files in each scanned book folder creating one PDF file for each of Donna's nine notebook binders or books. He added a cover page, links page, and index, if available, then compressed each PDF book file to a manageable size. He placed the nine reduced size PDF files in a OneDrive folder with the link to the folder distributed in a Facebook document and uploaded the PDF files to the Internet Archive.

These Younkin files were uploaded to Linda's one drive account, and will be available as long as the account is paid. This is a Microsoft account and will allow you to view, and download.

Remember, this is Donna's life work, her passion. Please respect that.

And, please remember the many hours of mind-numbing scanning went into the preservation of her work.

Jacob Younkin Books The Jacob files were lovingly scanned by Donna's sister Jean, and her husband, Jim Miller. There are four volumes, and 2 pages of explanations.

The Republican may be seen at McCook's News Agency, 118 Centre Street, at 5 cents each.

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter, at Meyersdale, Pa.

RAILROAD SOLD TO REORGANIZERS

Western Maryland, Part of Wabash, Knocked Down to Highest Bidder.

One railroad, with its nearly 600 miles of track, including sidings, switches, etc., scores of station buildings, a great number of extra-freight and passenger—and enough locomotives, if strapped together, to pull down Mount McKinley, was put up on the auction block at Union Station, Baltimore, Friday morning and knocked down to the sole bidder, representing the reorganization committee of the bondholders of the road.

It was the Western Maryland, which extends from Baltimore to Beltington, W. Va., via Cumberland. Meyersdale is living in hopes of seeing this road built from Cumberland to Pittsburgh, via this city. The price offered by the bondholders' committee and accepted was $2,000,000, which was the minimum fixed by the United States circuit court. There was no other bid. The bidder representing the committee were Henry L. Cooper and Frank C. Nindemann, Jr., of New York.

When 10 o'clock, the hour of the sale arrived, there were 100 persons, representatives of the bondholders, financial and railroad interests of Baltimore and adjacent cities, gathered at the depot.

The John C. Ross, counsel for R. W. Bahard, receiver of Wallon, Farrell, Moorman & Co., formally served a printed notice upon Mr. Hunkley and those contemplating the purchase of the property, that his client holds a claim against the Coal and Iron Railway, a part of the Western Maryland system, for $125,000 and interest from March, 1904, for work and labor done by the former firm of Wallon, Farrell, Moorman & Co., and that the sale in no wise would affect the right of the claimant to establish a suit in a circuit court for the Northern part of West Virginia.

As foreclosure was one of the last steps in the reorganization of the property. As soon as the legal details are complied with a new company will be organized under the laws of Maryland and take over the road and franchises.

This company will have an authorized capital stock of $10,000,000 common

Recent Deaths.

The entire community was shocked at the sad news of the sudden death of this amiable woman, at her home in Kingwood, Pa., at the age of 27 years, 1 month and 12 days, on Wednesday morning, November 17, 1909, of apoplexy. She was the daughter of Mr. John B. Trisney and the beloved wife of F. A. Kregar. She was loved by all who knew her because of her lovable disposition.

Four brothers and five sisters with her father and husband and two little daughters, Bertha and Gladys, are left to mourn their sad loss. Her mother preceded her to the land of rest almost twenty-five years ago. Her brothers are William H. J. W., E. B. and George Trisney. Her sisters, Mrs. J. A. Cunningham, Mrs. Charles Schuler, Miss Elmina Trisney, Mrs. Edna Philippi and Miss Edna Trisney. These sorrowing friends have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.

Funeral services were conducted in the Bethel Church of God, Kingwood, Pa., by Rev. Hummel, of Rockwood, Pa., assisted by the writer, in the presence of a large and weeping audience, after which we held her to rest in the Lutheran cemetery to await the resurrection of the Just. Oh sister can the awful truth be true, That thou art sleeping now beneath the sod.

Where flowers keep their gently tears of dew, And mourn the precious dust so dear to God?

Oh yes, too true, no more shall we behold—

Thy radiant smile like sunshine on the way, While at the thought we mourn with grief untold, Thy sun gone down while yet 'twas noon and day.

W. J. HUNTER.

mittee's attention that because the Younkin family's roots are deep within Somerset County history that many of the descendants of this historical family do not even realize that they are indeed descendants of the brothers that settled there in the late 1700s.

The committee's goal is to reach out to all descendants. Due to this, the committee has decided to publish this list of names of Somerset county families that married into the Younkin family. Many were marriages from the 1700s and 1800s, and many of these allied families now have descendants that we are not aware of. This list is certainly not all inclusive but is representative of just some of the families we are having trouble locating descendants of. We would very much like to have these families represented at the reunion.

They are:

Brougher, Christner, Dorsey, Dull, Dumbauld, Faidley, Firestone, Gerhardt, Harbaugh, Hartzell, Haupt, Henry, Husband, Imel, Johnston, King, Kroger, Lehmer, Lightlighter, McClintock, McNeill, Moon, Mountain, Myers, Nicola/Nicklow, Ohler, Phillippi, Pringley, Ream, Rhoads, Romesburg, Rush, Sanner, Schrock, Tannehill, Swarner, Trimpey, Weimer.

Please call Everett Sechler at 814-395-3200 for further information or write to Donna Younkin Logan, 12109-A Old Frederick Rd., Thurmont, Md. 21788, phone (301) 898-3179. Reservations are needed for the picnic on Saturday, Aug. 22.

Our Military Men

WALTER S. YOUNKIN was born 10 Jun 1833 in Turkeyfoot Twp., Somerset Co., PA. Walter's parents, Dr. Jonas and Martha (PRINGEY) YOUNKIN, were among the many YOUNKIN families that moved, with their families, during the 1850s to the western frontier. Walter was married on 5 May 1856 to Eva M. TROYER by Stephen Palmer Judge of Henry County, IL. Walter and Eva were blessed with 2 sons, Warren E. b. 25 Mar 1858 and Howard V. b. 30 May 1862. As fate would have it, these were the only children Walter would ever father.

It was in Annawan, Henry Co., IL, that Walter enlisted in the Union Army on 12 Aug 1862. He was mustered into service on 20 Sep 1862 as a Corporal in the 112th Illinois Vol. for a term of 3 years. His physical description, as noted by the enlistment officer was: 5'8" tall, light complexion, black hair and blue eyes. He served almost three full years and was mustered out on 20 Jun 1865 with the remaining men in his company. Little did Walter know, as he rejoined his family, that, in fact, the biggest battle he was to ever fight had barely begun. His general debility on returning home, was, no doubt, thought to be simple exhaustion from the years of the war. His weakness became worse and after numerous visits to doctors, Walter found that, sometime during his years of military service, he had developed diabetes. The fact that Walter's name does not appear on the lists of men attended by military physicians during the war attests to his bravery - he had suffered in silence.

On November 19th 1868 Walter died. Two letters contained in Walter's pension file tell his story. The first being a letter from Walter's brother, Dr. Edwin YOUNKIN, of St. Louis, Missouri who stated that he had treated his brother and that he had died from Gangrene Senilis a complication resulting from Diabetes. The other letter was from Walter's mother, Martha wrote, "I was called in to help take care of him during his last illness and was with him constantly during the seven weeks immediately preceding his death and was with him at the time of his death, which was on the 19th day of November A.D. 1868. During the time I helped to take care of him, he suffered greatly with pains and swelling ... that he was confined to his bed all the time I was with him." Walter was buried in Fairview Cemetery in Sheffield, Henry Co., IL.

Eva (TROYER) YOUNKIN married again on 7 Dec 1871 to William H. GILLESPIE by whom she had 2 daughters, Hattie b. 1872 and Kittie b. 1874. This was not to be a happy marriage for Eva as in 1875 she and William were separated and later divorced. The ultimate whereabouts of Eva and her 2 daughters is unknown.

Of Walter and Eva's two sons, Warren Eugene and Howard Venvelsy YOUNKIN we do know. Several of our readers are descendants of these sons. Warren m. Maggie M. STEPHENS and settled in Dorchester, NE. Howard m. Clara B. EARL and lived for many years in IL, but later moved to the Omaha, NE. area. [Walter⁴ Dr. Jonas³ Jacob² Henry¹]

SOMERSET FAMILY REUNION Descendants of William 'Henry' and Rachel (McClintock)Younkin

This summer, I was privileged to attend the annual reunion of the descendants of William "Henry" Younkin and his wife, Rachel McClintock. In charge of the day's events was Hazel Miller. I was to meet Hazel at her home in Somerset, PA. I must tell you I was a tad apprehensive about meeting all these strangers. But as I walked up to Hazel's door and she came out to greet me with a warm "bear hug", I immediately felt like we had been friends for years. It was soon apparent that this same gift for warmth is a family trait. I don't think I have ever been in a social situation where I felt more at home than I did that day!

The reunion was held at a park just outside the city of Somerset. Though a drizzle of rain was in the air the entire day — it put no damper on anyone's spirits. It was complete with all the usual homebaked goodies and talk of everyone's year long activities.

I, of course, had brought quite a bit of my collection of materials (old Younkin Family Newsletters, notebooks of family group sheets, photographs, etc.) and was quite surprised when it became apparent that these cousins were not aware that our family was so extensive. Donna (Younkin) FOSS and her sister-in-law, Juanita YOUNKIN, after hearing that I now have over 5000 YOUNKIN cousins listed in my database and that all of the YOUNKIN families of Somerset are related, spent the rest of the day telling everyone else. (I think I'll hire them in our PR dept.)

I was, also, surprised when I learned that most of the attendees had never heard of our family newsletter. Then I realized that most of them didn't carry the YOUNKIN surname. It was a good thing I had brought lots of copies of our first newsletter so that each could have one. I can't possibly tell you how good it made me feel to have all these people tell me how much they liked our Newsletter.

One of the highlights of the day, for me, was a listing of all of the known descendants of William "Henry" and Rachel which Hazel had prepared in anticipation of my coming. I was thrilled to be able, in return, to help Hazel carry their lineage back to our immigrant father Johann Henrich/Henry JUNGHEN.

If you are a member of a Genealogical or Historical Society anywhere in the U.S. that offers free queries to members, please consider sending in a General YOUNKIN family query along with a notice about our Family Newsletter. This would benefit all of us in our research efforts.

In an effort to coordinate research efforts, and in the hopes of finding more of our cousins, I have been writing to other surname Family Associations that are known to connect to our YOUNKIN families. Some of the ones I have written to are the: HAUPT FAMILY ASSOC., RICKEY FAMILY ASSOC., WEIMER FAMILY ASSOC. and the SKINNER FAMILY ASSOC. If you can suggest others, please let me know. The Assoc. listed below has agreed to place a similar notice in their family newsletter regarding our YOUNKIN families.

Elizabeth (YOUNKIN) FISTER KELLY

Elizabeth YOUNKIN was born on 25 Sep 1835/36 in Pennsylvania. She married Daniel FISTER (FEISTER) on 16 May 1852 in Clearfield, PA. by a Justice of the Peace, James GILL.

Daniel and Elizabeth FISTER lived in Baccaria Twp. in Clearfield Co., PA from 1852 until 1879 and had 14 children, all born in Clearfield Co. The Twp. of Baccaria borders on Cambria Co., PA. The [known] children's births (taken from census records) are:

Charles	b. 1854	Samuel P.	b. 1868
Andrew Jackson	b. 1856	Frasiese (?Susie)	b. 1870
Jephtha Patti	b. 1859	Cyrus David	b. 1872
John E.	b. 1861	Martha	b. 1874
Sarah E.	b. 1863	Nettie	b. 1876
Mary C.	b. 1865	Effie	b. 1879
Isabella S.	b. 1866

Daniel FISTER served in the Civil War from 27 Feb 1864 until 9 Nov 1865. He served in Company K 3rd Regiment of Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery and was honorably discharged at Ft. Monroe.

Daniel FISTER purchased four pieces of land, 1851 from George W. DAVIS, 1869 from Henry BEYER, 1872 from William WELD, 1879 from Issac RICKETTS. [note from the editor: deeds are important in family history as they often give the residence of the participating parties]. In selling the above properties Daniel, and his wife, were, in the 1st sale (1880), listed as residents of "Washington Co., NE. late of Baccaria". The 2nd sale (1881) listed their home as "Burt Co., NE".

In May 1879 Daniel and Elizabeth (YOUNKIN) FISTER removed to Iowa. The specific location is unknown but their son, Andrew, married in Jasper County, IA. in 1878 to Sarah Maria YOUNKIN and lived in Polk County, IA. in 1880. The Daniel FISTER family moved to Burt Co., NE. in 1880 but they were not on the 1880 census there.

Daniel FISTER died in Burt Co., NE. on 22 Sep 1896 and was buried at Tekamah, Burt Co., NE. On 24 Nov 1896 Elizabeth signed an affidavit in order to receive a widow's Pension based on Daniel's Civil War Service. On 17 Apr 1898 Elizabeth married Seth KELLY who died in 1900. In 1911 she was living with her daughter, Mary STEWART, in Sturgis, Meade Co., SD. Shortly before her death, she returned to NE. and to the home of her son, Cyrus, who lived at Herman, Washington Co., NE. By a remarkable coincidence she died at 11 o'clock p.m. on November 11, 1911. Funeral services were held on Nov. 14, 1911 at the Methodist Church in Tekamah and she was buried at Tekamah, Burt Co., NE.

Update on Rudolph YOUNKIN

From the History of Berks County, Pennsylvania (1976) we find that Ralph YOUNKIN is listed in the chapter titled Taverns [pg.28] as being a licensed innkeeper in the year 1796. The location of his inn was unknown.

Announcements:

Beginning with the Jan. Feb. Mar. 1991 issue of the YFNB I will start listing new subscribers with their lineage back to the immigrant brothers (or, at least, as far back as we have). Their lineage will be done in the same format as is used throughout the newsletter - [name⁴ name³ name² name¹, etc.]. If you would like a similar listing of the subscribers to-date (142-about 10 pages) please send $2.00 to cover the costs. I will mail these out sometime in January so if you haven't sent in your line - PLEASE DO SO TODAY - so that your family can be represented on this listing. Future issues will then contain only the information on new subscribers. This listing should prove interesting as well as fun. You will be able to see just where our YOUNKINS live - how many we have on each branch of our tree - etc. If you would like to organize a state-wide reunion this listing will help you. If your future plans include traveling to other areas - you will be able to see if there is a cousin listed near your destination city.

Cops: Jealous feud fueled killing

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Two young women were charged yesterday with fatally stabbing a teenage girl in a jealous feud over a 20-year-old man, police said.

In addition, the man, Lawrence S. Yunkin of Conestoga, was charged with resisting apprehension.

Laurie Show, left alone at home in East Lampeter Township when her mother was lured away, suffered multiple stab wounds Friday, including a severe cut to the neck, according to Dr. Barry D. Walp, the Lancaster County coroner. Walp said Show died of blood loss.

Police Chief Jacob A. Glick Jr. of East Lampeter Township described the killing as "probably the most brutal thing I've seen in 20 years of law enforcement."

Lisa M. Lambert, 19, of Conestoga and Tabatha F. Buck, 17, of Lancaster were charged with one count each of criminal homicide and criminal conspiracy, police said.

ALL THREE suspects were apprehended for questioning early yesterday morning.

The police chief said there was "quite a bit of a domestic battle" between Show and Lambert. He said Show apparently was involved with Yunkin, who is Lambert's boyfriend.

Police said Buck was a good friend of Lambert and may not have known the victim.

Show's mother, Hazel Haas, was called away from home about 6:45 a.m. Friday, police said. The caller claimed to be an employee at Conestoga Valley High School and asked for a meeting with Haas about her daughter's performance in school, police said.

Glick said he believed the caller was one of the three charged, although police do not know which one made the call.

Haas was returning to their apartment about 7:20 a.m. when a downstairs neighbor stopped her to ask what had caused so much noise upstairs. Haas went upstairs and found her daughter lying on her bedroom floor, police said.

The teen died before an ambulance arrived, police said.

Glick said Lambert recently confronted Show at the mall where she worked in a women's clothing store.

"I understand she started pushing (Show) around, and some others interceded before the police got there," Glick said.

Show's friends described her as a kind, simple and responsible person.

She was a sophomore and worked in the high school resource room, helping students who have learning problems.

School officials announced Show's death over the public address system about 1:30 p.m., students said.

She would have turned 17 on Jan. 27. Besides her mother, she is survived by her father, John A. Show of Strasburg, and grandparents, Dr. Whitlaw M. and Ruth Allen Show of Bird-in-Hand.

SKINNER FAMILY p. 366

Our family traces its lineage from Nathaniel Skinner, Sr., born in Woodbridge, NJ, in 1706, who settled in Somerset County about 1773, coming to the Jersey settlement by wagon train with several other families. The original family name in Scotland was thought to have been MacGregor but was changed by Rev. William Skinner who supposedly participated in an uprising against King George II and who fled to America, changing his name in the meantime.

Nathaniel had a large family, including a son James who, with two other Skinners, served in the Revolutionary War. They received tracts of land from the government for their services and moved to Fayette County where they farmed or preached (or both). They settled near the present town of Mill Run (originally known as Skinner's Mill Run) and near Hickman Chapel. My grandparents, Marcellus and Margaret (Moon) Skinner, had fourteen children, seven of whom grew to adulthood. The family farm was next to Hickman Chapel Church, the land for the church having been given by my grandfather Skinner and my grandfather Tissue (another famous Somerset County family). An interesting side light to the Skinner/Tissue clan is that four of Marcellus' children married Tissues: Ada (Joseph), George (Elizabeth), Earl (Jessie), and Abram (Nina). Nina and Elizabeth (Bess) were half sisters; Jessie and Joseph, cousins.

My parents, Abram and Nina, soon after their marriage, came to Confluence where they opened a grocery store and where they stayed in business until the advent of "super markets." My mother, having taught school, began teaching again during the war, serving in Ursina, Fort Hill, as well as Confluence. This was the era of the one-room schoolhouse where she had to teach several grades and where heat was produced by a pot-bellied stove stoked by hand. Mother spent her last years teaching in the consolidated school in Harnedsville, retiring in 1971 after a career of 34 years. Both parents were active in the Confluence Baptist Church (now Turkeyfoot Valley Baptist), serving in various capacities (financial secretary, treasurer, organist). A carillon recently installed there is in memory of my father who died in 1975.

Several of Marcellus' descendants are still living in Somerset County. However, there seems to be a Skinner penchant to have an "itchy foot" so many of the grandchildren have moved to the far corners of the country, including Maryland, Texas, Wisconsin, California, even Alaska.

I graduated from the old Confluence High School in 1947 and left Somerset County to attend college in Cleveland, Ohio, where I met my husband and where we located and had our family. Although my children never followed the Skinner tradition of having a minister to boast about, our eldest daughter, Christine, served in the Peace Corps in Honduras where she met her husband. My husband and I own a printing business in Cleveland and are happy that our family are all working together in this endeavor. Marilyn Skinner Wines

George was born on December 8, 1924. He is the son of Alex Fisher and Darlie Ross. George's grandfather is Jacob Ross. His genealogy was traced back to George Ross, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and Betsy Ross, the maker of the first flag. Effie Kooser Is Wed to A. N. Lyberger, Former Ohio Man, at Church Ceremony

Charming simplicity marked the marriage of Mrs. Effie Kooser, daughter of E. C. Henry of Snyder street, and A. N. Lyberger, also of this city, which took place at 8:30 o'clock this morning at the First United Brethren Church in Lincoln avenue. Rev. Elmer A. Shultz, pastor, performed the ceremony. There were no attendants.

Miss Kathleen Barnes, niece of the bride, played the nuptial music, using Wagner's wedding march from "Lohengrin" as the processional. During the exchange of marriage vows Miss Barnes played softly "O Promise Me" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and immediately afterward Mendelssohn's wedding march from "Midsummer Night's Dream."

The bride wore a navy blue suit with white accessories, and a shoulder corsage of American Beauty rosebuds and baby white carnations.

Mrs. Lyberger is well known in Connellsville, having been a clerk on the main floor of the Troutman Company store for thirteen years. Her fellow employees presented her with a lovely lace table cloth.

Mr. Lyberger is a former conductor on the New York Central Railroad and was residing at Elyria, Ohio, at the time of his retirement.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip to Boston and Plymouth, Mass. They will return by the way of Buffalo, and New York City and will be at home after July 1 at Poplar Grove.

LOVERS SEPERATED 11 YEARS AGO BY TIF ON WEDDING EVE WILL BE MARRIED SUNDAY.

Sept. 4, 1937.—Brought together again 44 years after a quarrel that terminated their engagement, a man and woman, each now 64 years of age, returned today from Ohio to Fayette county, the home of their youth, to apply for a necessary marriage license to permit the belated ceremony to take place Sunday in Connellsville.

Athalinda Teresa Edmonds, widow of T. H. Edmonds, daughter of the late Henry and Mary Louise Sampsonson Stillwagon of Pennsylvania, and Aaron Nelson Lyberger, railroad conductor, a son of the late Jacob and Sarah Younklin Leiberger of Connellsville, "kissed and made up" and have decided to travel the balance of their life together.

On the finger of the bride-to-be is the diamond ring she returned to the man who had been her youthful choice back in the faraway days when love was in full bloom and the years stretched away into the future. The ring had never graced the finger of any other woman but had been kept bright and shiny for the girl for whom it had been originally selected.

During the 44 years the boy and girl grew into manhood and womanhood and married others with whom they lived until death separated them.

Application for the marriage license was made in Uniontown by mail from Elyria, Ohio, where the two now reside. Today they came to Uniontown to claim the official document that will permit them to become man and wife.

Older and wiser but still very much in love, they are eagerly awaiting the time when the vows will be repeated Sunday at noon at the United Brethren Church, with Rev. E. A. Schultz officiating. The day will be Mrs. Edmonds' birthday anniversary and the 44th anniversary of the date originally set for the marriage.

30 Apr 1938 - YFN'B

Connellsville, Pa., May 2, 1938.—Mrs. Teresa Edmonds Lyberger, former well-known woman of Connellsville and until recently a resident of Elyria, Ohio, died Tuesday night at the home of a step-daughter, Mrs. Nellie Schreengost of Beaver Falls. Ill for the last year, her condition was somewhat improved until New Year when she was injured in an automobile accident. Since then her health gradually failed. Because of this, she and Mr. Lyberger discontinued housekeeping and went to the Schreengost home six weeks ago.

Mrs. Lyberger was born in Connellsville, a daughter of the late Henry and Louise Stillwagon, and had spent the greater part of her life here. She was twice married. Some time after the death of her first husband, Thomas H. Edmonds, she was married Sunday, September 5, 1937, to Nelson Lyberger of Elyria. The ceremony took place at the First United Brethren Church of Connellsville of which Mrs. Lyberger was a member and active worker for many years. Rev. Elmer A. Schultz, pastor, officiated. After their marriage the couple took up their residence at Elyria.

In addition to her church work, Mrs. Lyberger was a member of the Ladies' Aid Society, serving as president for 10 years, and the Royal Circle Class of which she was president for several years. She was active in fraternal circles, having instituted Saint Omar Sisterhood of the Dames of Malta of Connellsville May 22, 1925, and continuing her membership. She was also a member of Edna Rebekah Lodge and resided here until her marriage to Mr. Lyberger.

TOTAL YEARS OF THESE FIVE PEOPLE 451

In the article which follows a brief story of the old Younkin folks, whose photos appear in this issue of Bulletin will be given to begin they are all that are left living, (of the fourth generation) of Johan Henrich Junghen, or Younkin, the Pioneer of 1753, it is the aim of the writer to give definite dates as near as is possible to do so, and with but few exceptions it is being done. Henry Junghen or Younkin was a widower when he arrived in America in 1753, with a son Ernest Junghen, who supposedly died a short time later, as he never was heard from again. In 1754 another son arrived in America, John Junghen, of the descendants of the last named son, will make mention at a later date through columns of the Bulletin, after a stay of a few years in Philadelphia, Pa., post of arrival, Henry migrates to Bucks County, Pa., where in 1756 he purchased a farm, and in the same year married Catherine Seiserer.

Henry died in 1787 he is buried in the grave yard at Kellers Church, the gravestone reading: Geboren January 31, 1717.

IN "WHO'S WHO" CLASS

Miss Mary Jean Younkin of Washington, D. C., has been selected as one of the seven girls and twelve boys of George Washington University whose names will be placed in the "Who's Who Among American University Students." Miss Younkin is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hicks in Race street.—Nov. 21, 1938.

THE DRAKE FAMILY

Capt. Francis Drake and wife Mary Walker, the ancestors of this Drake Family, were listed as first settlers of Piscataway and Woodbridge, New Jersey. He carried the title of Captain from his service in the New Jersey Blues. His son John Drake was known as "Rev. John" and he was a pastor of the New Jersey Baptist Church for fifty-one years. He and his wife Rebecca Trotter also lived in Piscataway, New Jersey. Their son was Joseph Drake, born in Piscataway Oct. 21, 1681. He married Ann Walker and she was a great granddaughter of George Soule of the Mayflower, the famous ship that landed in Plymouth in 1620. Joseph and Ann (Walker) Drake were the parents of John Drake who was born in Piscataway, New Jersey, in 1713. He married Ann Fitz Randolph, a granddaughter of Edward Fitz Randolph of Piscataway and Woodbridge, New Jersey. John and Ann (Fitz Randolph) Drake were the parents of Capt. Oliver Drake; Josephus Drake that married Andrew Friend; Elizabeth Drake who married Joseph Mountain. All of Somerset County, Pennsylvania. Capt. Oliver Drake was born Jan. 25, 1745 in Morris County, New Jersey and settled in Turkeyfoot Township, Somerset County about 1766. He was commissioned on Sept. 20, 1781 as a Captain in the First Company, Third Battalion, Bedford County, Pennsylvania Militia, Revolutionary War. He married Francis Skinner a daughter of Nathaniel Skinner and wife Elizabeth. Nathaniel Skinner was also an early settler of Somerset County. He had land there in the early days and Capt. Oliver had a Warrant #138 of Bedford County, Pennsylvania for 200 acres adjoining that of Nathaniel Skinner of an earlier date. Nathaniel Skinner is buried in the Old Jersey Cemetery and his marker shows he was born in 1706 and came from Woodbridge, New Jersey. Capt. Oliver Drake is buried in same cemetery.

Capt. Oliver Drake founded the little town of Drakestown, Pennsylvania. He started the first grist mill and the first saw mill. I have been there and some of the stone foundations and waterways are still visible.

Oliver and Frances (Skinner) Drake had a son, David, born in or near Drakestown, August 4, 1775. He married Mary Melick, a daughter of John Melick and wife, name unknown, and of this same territory. John Melick also was a Revolutionary War soldier. David and Mary (Melick) Drake moved to Alexandria, Ohio. He and his brother-in-law, Joshua Lobdell (wives were sisters) were among the first settlers of Alexandria, Ohio. David and Mary (Melick) Drake had a son Osmer Drake who married Lucinda Siler of Virginia and Ohio. Osmer and Lucinda (Siler) Drake had Ann Maria Drake, my grandmother. Ann Maria Drake married Thomas Orr, a Civil War soldier and they had Mahalia Josephine Orr, my mother. She married Sanford Elvin Thomas and I am the youngest daughter, Mary Josephine Thomas. I married Frank A. Crismore, whose ancestors came from Pennsylvania and Virginia. We have two sons, Elvin and John Crismore, three grandsons and three granddaughters. Held In Methodist Church Wakefield, Kansas, With 150 Present

The first real reunion of the Younkin families of Kansas was held in the Methodist church here Sunday with about 150 present.

Many attended regular church services that morning followed by a potluck dinner at noon and a general good time of conversation and reminiscences that afternoon.

During the business session that afternoon committees were appointed to collect genealogical data of the Younkin "tribe;" to plan for the Kansas trek to the big reunion in Pennsylvania next August, and to plan other details, including another Kansas reunion next year.

The following article ament the Kansas "tribe" were chosen Sunday: Grover Younkin of Wichita, president; Mrs. Mamie Pralher of Dodge City, general secretary; and John K. Younkin of Great Bend, recording secretary.

Although all ages were represented at Sunday's gathering, from the cradle up, Mrs. Nealey Younkin appeared to be the oldest, at 75; or at least she was willing to admit her age, though there were others near that mark.

The following article ament the reunion and the Younkin family has very kindly been furnished us by Rev. E. H. Tannchill:

Many gathered in time for the morning church service and listened to the pastor of the church, Rev. Francis Tannchill, a great-grand son of Moses Younkin; preach the sermon. After a bountiful basket dinner all gathered in the auditorium of the church where the "Kansas division of the Younkin family Homecoming" was organized. Various committees were appointed and names secured of families that would plan to attend the "home coming" in Pennsylvania August 22. At least 12 families signified their intentions of going.

While this meeting were in progress the youngest descendant of Younkin blood was born at Herson, Kansas; a son to Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Franke, and a grandson of Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Tannchill of Wakefield, a three times great grand child of Henry Younkin who was born in 1805.

The names of those present are too numerous to mention, but there were descendants of the Younkins from Wichita, Great Bend, Dodge City, Junction City, Clay Center, Manhattan, Ogden, Milford, Oak Hill, Riley, Broughton, St. Marys, Auburn, Topeka and Kansas City.

About the year 1753 a young man named Henry Younkin came to America and settled in Bucks county, Pennsylvania, where it is recorded that he paid taxes. One of his sons was Frederick, and one of Frederick's sons was Henry; who was the father of Moses, Harrison, Alfred, William, Jerry, Silas, John, Ross; Mary, who became Mrs. Will Stewart; Cassie, who married Dan Myers; Dillah who married John Finkley; and Rachel, who married John Myers.

In 1851 this family began a westward movement, led by Moses Younkin who in that married Lavilla Mitchel and moved to Bloomington, Ill. Three years later they came to Kansas and settled in Potawatomi county. In 1856 he discovered the land he had preempted was on the Indian reservation.

He then came to Clay county and built his home across the river from where Wakefield now stands. Not long after this some of the brothers came and a little later the father and mother moved to the same neighborhood. A large number of the citizens of Wakefield and surrounding country and towns are younkin descendants.

Other families of Younkins came at various times and settled around Wichita, Great Bend, and Dodge City and other parts of Kansas. It is being discovered that the Younkins are quite numerous in the state as well as all over the United States. The history of all these settlers would make interesting reading.

A few years ago some of the families in Pennsylvania became family conscious and arranged a "Home Coming." Last year there were 1200 in the gathering at Kingwood, Penna. A national organization has been effected with Charles Younkin of Charleroi as secretary. He has been tireless in his efforts to secure a genealogy and encourage reunions of the families in other parts of the country. It was thought this suggestion that the Kansas Younkins arranged a get together here Sunday.

At 11 o'clock Comm. Harvey gave the address of welcome, and distinguished guests were introduced. About a quarter to twelve the members of the Church of God, who hold their services in the Municipal building, came in and sang several songs. Those were greatly enjoyed by all and they received a big hand.

Rev. Fredric J. Haasch delivered the noon invocation. A basket dinner was served, and a table, second to none, greeted the eyes of the group. During the noon hour music was furnished by Wanda Hammon's orchestra, followed by a solo by Robert Younklin, Jr., of Monument, Kansas, and a tap dance by Betty Jane and Jimmie Baker.

At 2 p. m. the business meeting was held with a talk by Mrs. Mamie Prather of Garden City, state secretary, who has done quite a bit of research work in other states. She told of her travels elsewhere, and the number of Younklin she encountered. There was also a talk by Grover Younklin of Wichita, state president. After all business was transacted they adjourned for the social hour.

The local committee included James Younklin, Junction City, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Myers, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Younklin, all of Junction City; Dr. and Mrs. Jackson, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Younklin, Jr., of Riley Center, and Mr. and Mrs. Vanderstelt of Wakefield.

Fifth Annual Reunion Held at Kingwood

Held in L. O. O. F. Grove at Kingwood, Pa., Sunday, August 21, 1938.

Visitors were present from thirteen states and the District of Columbia. A most beautiful day, and a representation of many of the branches of a great allied family group, make this annual gathering one of the greatest of its kind in existence. From early a. m. until well past mid-day, a continuous stream of cars came pouring into this wonderful spacious park (by actual count 300 autos and buses) where once each year we of Younkin Clan gather and make merry.

The morning program was a short one of music and song. The mid-day festivities were supplemented by a continuous stream of music by the Gallucci Orchestra, through a high power four-way amplifying system, and was plainly heard in all parts of the grove and immensely enjoyed by all. "Then the feast"—food, food everywhere, food fit for a kind and enough for an army (if not too large). The many park tables were quickly filled. The new spacious cafeteria pavilion was soon filled to capacity; every available place was quickly taken up. The day being ideal, many spread old fashioned picnic style. Soon this happy throng began enjoying to their hearts' content, to the fullest meaning of these gatherings. To the good women folks we owe much for these most wonderful, successful affairs, for they seem to know just what it takes to satisfy the appetites of the hungry hordes. The satisfied look is most convincing. Am inclined to believe this old saying, that many a person's heart has been won via the stomach. There was plenty for all and much was taken back home. During all this time autos continued to arrive, and by the time to start the afternoon program, the crowd looked more like a Fair or Chautauqua than a family gathering.

The afternoon program, one long to be remembered by all that were present, was in charge of Frank W. Younkin, master of ceremonies. The program was opened by prayer and song service, which was followed by address by Otto R. Younkin, patriotic speeches by F. E. Younkin and D. Garfield Younkin. Clarence L. Younkin of Miami, Fla., told of his many travels, and of being marshal in a Kansas town when western bad men were plenty.

Mamie Y. Prather of Garden City, Kan., spoke of her many travels among the Younkins and of the organization of the Kansas group, and of having brought to life the annual reunions held there each year.

Reading by Miss Ethel Prince.

Music by the Gallucci Orchestra.

Hill Billy music by Mr. Henry.

Mr. Smith, crayon artist, and Percy the Ventriloquist. This young fellow, a near 7 ft., 17-year-old giant, did a wonderful act with his make-believe Charlie McCarthy. All in all, too much program for one day. Nearly two hours were consumed by this most wonderful program that was immensely enjoyed by the many hundreds present.

All present officers were elected to serve again. After brief business meeting, the balance of the day was spent visiting. Persons were present from the following states: Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham and child from California; D. G. Younkin, Mesa, Ariz.; Mrs. Mamie Y. Prather, Garden City, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Younkin, Miami, Fla.; Dr. Noble Younkin and Col. Beck, Decatur, Ind.; Glenn Younkin, wife and mother, Mrs. Dottie J. Younkin, Marion, Ill.; Fred Younkin and sons, Ashville, Ohio; Calvin, Jesse, Oscar and William Black, Zanesville, Ohio; Ernest Younkin and wife, Rainelle, W. Va.; Marcus Younkin, wife and daughter, Margaret, Paris, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Fernsner, Washington, D. C.; Carl Smith, Edinburg, Va.; Mrs. Louise Kane Atlanta, Ga.; Geo. A. Younkin, Grantsville, Md.; and many from Pennsylvania. Many others were present from several of the states already mentioned, but it would take too much space to enumerate them all. The reason for enumerating the different states was to give you some idea of the size and magnitude of these great gatherings, a representation from 13 states and District of Columbia. We doubt if any other family can boast of a gathering as far reaching. Many of our old members were present again this year. Mrs. Naney Y. Forsythe, of Connelville, Pa., who just recently celebrated her 87th birthday, was the oldest person present, followed closely by Colwell S. Younkin, of Confluence, Pa., 85; Fremont Younkin, of Somerset, Pa., 84; Daniel Younkings, Butler, Pa., 83; Benton Younkin, Rockwood, Pa., 81; and from far-away Florida, Clarence L. Younkin, aged 73 years;

also many others whose ages have not been reported. The youngest person present was Clarence Ivan Younkin, 28 days old, he being a son of Kermit Younkin, of Johnstown, Pa., and a grandson of Clarence Younkin, whose photo appears in this issue. Too soon we come to the end of a glorious day, but one year hence we meet again.

Kingwood, W. Va., Was The Scene Of A Great Multitude Of 1000 Relatives And Friends of the Younkin Family Group

Persons near 1000 in number gathered at the beautiful I. O. O. F. Grove at Kingwood, Pa., Sunday, August 22, 1937 to attend the 4th Annual Reunion of this great Younkin Family group. Through the day was anything but pleasant for a gathering of this nature, as it rained continuously all day long, but the spirit of this great family group is not easily broken, as was shown on this day, it takes more than a rainy day to keep the folks away from this great annual event. Early in the day a continuous stream of cars began to arrive and continued to do so for past mid-day. The spacious pavilion was quickly filled to capacity and the new recently erected pavilion was also filled, and all other buildings were quickly taken up. Many hundreds of the folks kept to their cars, owing to the lack of other shelter. The usual visiting which is one of the main features of this great annual gathering was somewhat marred, but all was taken with a wonderful spirit which is always present at these gatherings. The morning program a short one of music and song, then a bounteous noonday meal was spread (owing to the weather the many tables under the trees in the spacious grove could not be used), in the cars parked near by in the two large pavilions, seats were arranged boards and plank were placed over the backs, every available space was quickly taken, many having to wait their turn, and food fit for the gods, and enough for an army. You of this great Younkin group at least showed know Younkin hospitality. The spirit of fine Younkin women is clearly shown by the abundance of food prepared for this annual feast, at least I have first hand information that your secretary is not the only one that has worked all night, in order that this should come about, but that the noble and grand mother, of our worthy pres. working all night baking and preparing that nobody should go hungry, if there is any finer spirit, I have never known of it. As I the writer have traveled and visited in my research much among these fine Younkin folks and find a wonderful friendly spirit which is universal in every instance, and truthfully saying there was plenty for all and much to be taken back home. The afternoon program, much musical (on the piano recently purchased for these annual gatherings) several numbers were rendered by violinist, Fred Younkin, accompanied by Mrs. Luella Shepard on piano. Master Tommy Younkin with his cornet rendered several fine selections, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Otto Younkin on the piano. Otto R. Younkin gave a short address of welcome, and told of the Pioneer of 1737, Johan Herman Junghen, on this date paying honor to the first Younkin in America. Dr. Noble Younkin gave a fine talk in English, Holland Dutch, and German. Also told of the origin of the name of A. D. 814, also telling of the origin of the Royal Coat of Arms, an exact copy of which was on display. A work of art shown for the first time, this contribution was furnished by Dr. Noble Younkin of Decatur, Ind. A novel feature of the program was a tap dance act of several numbers rendered by the Lincoln Sisters of Connellsville, Pa., who incidentally are grandchildren of one time Prof. Younkin, famous Ventriloquist of 50 years gone by he, near 85 years of age Colwell S. Younkin, of Confluence, Pa., also a tap dance act by Pauline Younkin, dressed as little Uncle Sam. Representative groups were present, who are descendants of the Pioneer Johan Herman Junghen of 1753, Johan Johannes Junghen of 1753, Johan Johannes Junghen of 1754, Henrick Junghen of 1806, and possibly of Peter Junghen of 1753. A representation of all the variations of present day spelling were present, the Younkin family of Sullivan Co., Pa.; the Younkin family of Western, Pa.; the Younkin family of Western, Pa.; and many other places, the Younkin family of Eastern, Pa.; the Younkin family of Cambria Co., Pa.; and the Younkens of Butler Co., Pa., and Maryland and a little explanation of who they are, the Younkin family are of Henrick Junghen of 1806, the Younkens are of George Younkin of Somerset Co., Pa., the Younkens are descendants of Johan Henrick Junghen of 1753, and of Johan Johannes Junghen of 1753 and of Johan Johannes Junghen of 1754, the Younkens, are Johan Herman Junghen of 1753, the Younkens, are of Johan Henrick Junghen of 1753, and the Younkens, of Maryland of 1753, and the Younkens, of Maryland are possibly of Johan Johannes Junghen, of 1754, the newly organized Kansas Auxiliary group being represented by their Pres. Grover C. Younkin, of Wichita, and many others from his state, this newly formed group held their first Reunion, April 11-37, an article which appears in this issue gives a full account representative groups were present from many states, including Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Georgia, Maryland, West Va., New Jersey, and others, from Ohio, the following were present, Mr. and Mrs. Russel Younkin, Fort Lorain, Phillip F. 'Mission of Peace' takes Somerset teen to U.S.S.R.

By DOBIE BLACK
Lifestyles Editor

Heather Yunkin, the daughter of Linda and Larry Yunkin of Somerset RD 5, traveled to the U.S.S.R. April 16-May 2 as part of the USA/USR Mission of Peace, the 1990 Annual Northeastern Jurisdictional Council on Youth Ministries sponsored by the United Methodist Church.

The senior at Somerset Area High School was one of 34 youths nationwide taking part in the trip. A member of Mt. Calvary United Methodist Church, she joined with five other students from Western Pennsylvania and five advisors to take the trip.

Heather traveled to New York where she met with the rest of the group, including her roommate, where mother had her in the Johnsons area. From JFK airport, they traveled to Helsinki, Finland, for three days. From there, it was a 15-hour trip to Moscow, U.S.S.R., for the longest leg of the journey.

Heather found over $1,500 in pay for the trip. "Many groups give me donations to make the trip," explained Heather. The donation came from her home church, the Somerset-Keweenaw Club, Synopsia, Somerset VFW Auxiliary, and Somerset Deer and Columba.

"My own church also held some fund-raisers of their own," said Heather. "The U.S.M. women sold sponges to help with the cost of trip, and the youth group sold clothing stuffs."

Shopping in U.S.S.R. consisted mostly of shopping in the markets, which are like the better stores here. Black market items, which were sold on every street corner, include military belts and Soviet uniforms. "They were purchased by using American currency or even trading haberdashery for some of the items," she explained.

McDonald's has caught on in a huge fashion in the U.S.S.R. "We looked at the line, which went one and one-half hours around the block, and decided we didn't want to go in," she explained.

Heather had a chance to meet with youth her own age at The Pioneer Palace in Moscow, which was a nightclub for teens. Most of the teens spoke English rather well, so Heather found it easy to talk with them.

"Most of the time, we were asked, 'How big is your house? How many cars do you own?' and the rest," said Heather.

One girl talked with lived in a rooming flat. She shared a bedroom with her mother and brother. We learned that any when we to new families we sharing a bathroom and sometimes even a kitchen," she added.

The average pay is 140 rubles a month, roughly $40 a month. "The average cost is $20 a month, so the families live on $20 a month," she explained.

For breakfast, Heather and the rest of her group were fed bread,

remarkable," she said.

Most of the evening meal included fish, potatoes and meat, sometimes chicken. "I found out that the farther west you go, the more the food is improved

While in the U.S.S.R., the Mission of Peace group went to a Russian Church where the service was in both German and Russian, and also attended a Methodist Church in Tallinn, in Leningrad, the group went to a Russian Orthodox Church.

Heather has organized a club there from the U.S.S.R. and Finland, and is now preparing to show at her school as well as other churches and service organizations.

Money for Special Olympics

Sheeltz Inc. and Snyder of Berlin raised $10,000 for the Winter Special Olympics Games held at Hidden Valley Resort. All the Sheeltz convenience stores in the state sold books with coupons for Sheeltz and Snyder's products. The proceeds of $10,000 went to the Special Olympics programs. The check was presented to Special Olympics Monday at a Sheeltz convention being held at Seven Springs Resort. Bill

Parise, president of Pennsylvania Special Olympics, addressed the audience about the money. Rockwood students meet deadline

By SANDRA LEPLEY
Staff Writer

ROCKWOOD—Jay Best's sixth-period humanities students are not employees of a full-scale magazine, but their responsibilities with the "Time and Again" publication present real-life situations.

"Just the part of meeting deadlines is something everyone has to deal with every day in the real world," said Best, a social studies teacher who is adviser for the project.

After learning about a magazine series produced by students at Rabun Gap High School in North Carolina, Best decided to borrow the idea for his class.

"I had always wanted to do something like 'Time and Again' and this was the perfect opportunity," Best said.

"Time and Again" contains short, personal histories of community members, who are mostly older people with plenty of stories to tell. The community member is the narrator and their story is kept intact and used word for word. Each issue contains about 30 pages.

The first issue came out in October 1989 and included subjects ranging from Italian immigration to butchering hogs. The issue of that focused on specific topics, such as fishing, railroading and steam power. The staff currently is working on a deer-hunting issue.

"The articles are a snapshot of a person's life," said Best. "You can tell the personalities of a person by reading the stories."

Each of the 10 eleventh- and twelfth-grade students have specific duties similar to those of a newspaper staff. The staff makes contacts, interviews, edits, designs graphics and meets deadlines. The team also uses word processors throughout the whole process.

After a list of potential sources is compiled, the students have charge of contacting people, formulating questions and setting up an interview, which is taped and then typed word for word. Joyce Emert of the English department edits the copy for spelling and punctuation.

"I used to be very nervous when I would do an interview, but now I really enjoy it because I get to meet people," said senior Jenny McClure, who said she hopes to someday work for a magazine.

Doug May, editor of "Time and Again" and a senior this year, worked on every publication. One issue, in particular, takes on a personal meaning for him. He interviewed his grandfather, the late Wilbur May, who died in the spring.

"I learned so many things about my pup that I didn't know before," said Doug, who is responsible for making sure the staff meets the deadlines. Each issue's deadline is the end of the nine-week grading period.

After working on the staff for "Time and Again," Kevin Younkin, senior and assistant editor, learned the importance of deadlines. "If you miss days, you get too far behind on the articles and can't meet the deadlines," he said.

Once the stories and graphics are carefully cut and pasted, the staff reproduces the pages on the copier and puts the issue together.

A complimentary copy and a thank you note are sent to every person interviewed. Every student in ninth through twelfth grade receives a copy. The school library and the Rockwood Public Library also receive copies. Some community members have expressed interest in the publication as well.

"I think the response to it has been positive," Best said. "It has been well received by the community."

MEANDERINGS . . .

. . . with CLYDE MICHAEL

Summer is the time for family reunions and we scarcely pick up a local paper without reading of one, but the largest family reunion of which I have any record is the reunion of the Younkin family.

Attendance at their annual reunions number over one thousand members of this large German family which emigrated from Germany many years ago.

While calling on Mr. and Mrs. Horton H. Younkin in South Bloomfield, they showed me what I believe to be the only newspaper whose news is devoted entirely to one family and which is written and published as a family newspaper.

The newspaper is a six page, five column tabloid size published at Charleroi, Pa. by the officers of the Younkin Family Group. The subscription price of the paper is one dollar a year. From beginning to end it relates the news of the Younkins, one section being devoted to the history of the immigration of the first Younkins. One article, I note, relates to the Junghen Family in Bucks County, Pa. who immigrated to America on the ship "Charming Nancy" Oct. 8th, 1737. They started from their home in Germany with what seemed sufficient funds and provisions but the trip down the Rhine took most of their money. The wait for a ship at Rotterdam which exhausted their resources and they were then at the mercy of the Ship's Agents who induced them to sign contracts in a foreign tongue. When they finally reached Philadelphia they found themselves forced to work, three, four or five years as indentured servants to those who had hired them by paying the passage money.

Other articles relate to current news of this large family which comprises doctors, ministers, lawyers, city officials, college professors and what have you.

It also relates in detail the story of the last annual reunion held at the I. O. O. F. Grove in Kingwood, Pa. Over one thousand persons gathered here and although it rained continually all day long, the spirit of this great family seemed not to have been easily broken. Although rain prevented many people from leaving their cars and the shelter house was barely large enough to accommodate them, every one made the best of a rainy day and not only made short work of an abundance of food prepared for this annual feast, but managed to have in the afternoon the regular program.

I noticed among the numbers on the program one by our local Fred Younkin, who played the violin. I also noted one speech maker, Dr. Noble Younkin, who gave a talk in English, Holland Dutch and German. This address gave the history of the origin of the Royal Coat of Arms, an exact copy of which was on display.

Another interesting item was a list of fourteen members of the Younkin family living in 1937, the youngest of whom was 79 and the oldest 101 years. The combined ages of the fourteen old folks was 1238 years.

I noted as I looked through the entire paper that many news items were devoted to people 90 years old or older.

Another item concerned a physician, one of the early pioneers of Pennsylvania, who lived at the time when all the Younkins spoke the Pennsylvania Dutch. This physician, Dr. Edwin Younkin and his sister, Mrs. Howe, went among the hills and gathered the roots and herbs with which their father compounded all his medicine. Dr. Jonas Younkin, their father, possessed a big blue bottle at that time and from that bottle he sold skunk oil, bear grease, rattle-snake oil, turtle oil, goose grease, earth worm oil and many other kinds of oil, all owing to what the customer called for, yet all out of the same bottle. Dr. Edwin Younkin was editor of the American Medical Journal for thirty years.

Mr. Horton H. Younkin told me when he gave me this paper that that he attended the reunion in 1935 and 1936 but that in 1937 only his sons, Fred and Howard and their sons of Ashville represented this line of the Younkin family.

Mr. and Mrs. Horton H. Younkin are now 78 and 74 years respectively. They have been the parents of eight children, seven living and Fred, Ashville; Howard, Ashville Route 2; Mrs. Guy Crabb, Columbus; Earl, Columbus; Everett, Columbus; Mrs. James Hoover, Lockbourne, Route 2; and Mrs. Clarence Mithoff, Columbus.

In addition to this there have been twenty-four grandchildren, sixteen of whom are living and five great-grandchildren.

They are, grandchildren—Richard Harris, Russell Harris, Dorothy Buckley, Edgar Younkin, Warren Younkin, Omer Younkin, Junior Younkin, Delano Younkin, Clarence Robert Younkin, Erma Lee Younkin, Maxine Younkin, Gladys West, Floyd Younkin, Earl Younkin, Marjorie Younkin, Lola Faye Younkin, Russell Younkin, Cleo Furr, Willard Hoover, Christina Hoover, Imogene Hoover, Helga Mithoff, Louise Mithoff, Béatrice Mithoff.

The great grandchildren are—Edwin Heskett, Glenn Buckley, Kenneth Heskett, Betty Jean West and William Buckley.

ASHLAND TIMES-GAZETTE, Wednesday, July 28, 1990/A9

Lorain stars too powerful for Ashland, 19-10

By BOB FISHER

Times-Gazette Sports Writer

The Ashland Pony League's 15-year-old All-Stars had to wait until Tuesday night when they would meet Lorain right where they won them Tuesday night, but in their own back yard.

Lorain had just been upset by Yemassee, 6-5, and had to play in the losers' bracket. Finals against Ashland.

The Ashland stars struck fast and hard as they jumped out to a 5-0 lead after their first at bat and hit 6-1, after that.

But the Lorain bats came to life and started back to defeat Ashland, 19-10.

Lorain scored 18 runs in the last four innings, including seven in the fifth and six in the sixth.

"We never expected to be in a slugfest with Lorain," Ashland coach Steve Howe said. "I was hoping we wouldn't give the game back to them. Just like Monday night, another bad inning came back to haunt us."

Lorain came into the game with an advance reputation for power, and after winning some of the moonshots the club launched that reputation was correct.

Jason Stuenkel drilled two long homers, but the biggest of them all was a shot hit by Melvin McCull.

McCull hit a ball to straightaway center that cleared the post and hit the bleachers 30 feet behind the fence. (Some of the Lorain players claim McCull hit a ball over the fence inside Cleveland Municipal Stadium as a 12-year-old.)

"Melvin is our big Jackson," said Lorain coach Mark Mihal. "He either strikes out, or he hits the ball out of sight. He had struck out in his seven previous at bats before hitting the bomb."

"This was a real test of character for our team. We had just lost to Turkey and were down 1-0 before we came to bat."

Jason Whitford started things off for Ashland in the first inning with a solid single to right. Andy Suter and Clint Rowe walked. Whitford scored on a wild pitch and Suter scored on a line single by Vaughn Pokrywka, but Rowe was gunned down at second base.

Karl Longenecker tipped another solid shot to right-center, scoring Pokrywka, then Jason Stuenkel just crushed a ball to deep left-center. The ball was hit on a line and it was so hard, the only question was if it wasn't high enough to get over the fence, then certainly it would go through the fence.

It made it over the fence, getting out of the park in a hurry for a two-run homer, giving Ashland five hits in the first.

Lorain answered with a run in the second, leading the home, but the Ashland pitcher, Andy Suter, worked out of trouble without further damage.

Ashland then added another run in the third, making the score 6-1. Casey Eichhorn led off the inning with a walk, stole second, and scored on a single by Stuenkel.

But that's where the road ended.

Stuenkel's homer led off the top of the fourth and things went downhill from there.

Lorain will now come back tonight and play Tazewell at 6, but Lorain will have to beat Turkey twice if they are to represent Ohio when the tournament moves to Pennsylvania.

Pokrywka had done him for Ashland and Steve Stuenkel was including a home run.

Brian Hagwood, Dan King and Ryan Friesman all contributed two hits as Lorain collected a 16-hit attack.

Ashland's Casey Eichhorn slides across home plate as Lorain catcher John Yankin looks to make a throw. The umpire in the background is Grant Fawcett.

America is all remembered sounds. The sound of the ax in the winter woods; the swish of water past a canoe; the rattle of the "cl" in the Chicago loop; the tumult in a great plant as the machines slide past the assembly belt; the ear-splitting yells when the baseball runner slides across the plate.

If this is not America, then what in God's name is?

EYES OF SCORE NATIONS WATCH YANKEE BIRDMEN

Attempting Feat British and French Airmen Have Failed.

SERIES OF FLIGHTS

By Associated Press.
SANTA MONICA, Cal., Mar. 17.
Three United States army aviators started around the world from here to chart the first globe encircling airway.

Eyes of 23 nations will be on the skies between now and August as the American flyers wing their way on the 20,000 mile voyage in an effort to accomplish what French and British airmen failed to do.

The flight started at 9:32 o'clock this morning when Major Frederick L. Martin left the ground. He was followed by Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. Leigh Wade. A score of army and civilian airplanes followed as an escort and soon disappeared in the clouds to the northward.

The fourth world cruiser, delayed in delivery by the manufacturer, arrived today in San Diego. Lieut. Erik H. Nelson, pilot, hopes to take off tomorrow. He will join the others at Portland or Seattle.

America's attempt to map the first world airway will be carried out in a series of flights ranking from 125 to 140 miles. The first jump was from Cloverfield, here to Nather Field, Sacramento. The second, tomorrow, will be from Sacramento to Vancouver Barracks, Washington, across the river from Portland Wednesday to Seattle, where pontoons will be installed for Marine landings until the flyers reach Calcutta, India.

The cruisers plan to leave Seattle late this month, go through Alaska and Aleutian Points and reach Chicago Island, off Attu, and at the first division, by April 11.

SCHOOL BOARD ASKS BONDS FOR NEW BUILDINGS

Voters Pass on $600,000 Issue at Primaries April 22.

ISSUE STATEMENT

Uniontown board of education, at a meeting last evening, adopted resolutions submitting a $600,000 bond issue, for the erection of two new junior high school buildings, to the voters of the city at the spring primaries on April 22. The following detailed statement was officially issued by the board:

To the people of Uniontown:
Your School Board has in its care the mental and physical development of 3700 children. Of these, 1040, or nearly thirty per cent, are today without suitable, healthful, or even lawful school accommodations.

In our elementary schools, 231 pupils are on half time; 509 others are crowded into rooms without adequate light or ventilation and never intended for class-rooms. Of these latter, 26; are in basement rooms which are a constant menace to the health and growth of children. In our elementary buildings there are 54 adequate class-rooms; yet 63 classes must daily be provided for.

In our high school building there are facilities for only 500 pupils; yet (Continued on Page Nine)

In addition to the readings members of the Perry township school orchestra rendered several numbers as did the girls chorus and the male quartet of the school.

Judges of the event were: Katharina Beggs, teacher, Monessen High School; Hettie Rindertmark, teacher, Monessen High School and C. L. Warner, teacher, Scottsdale High School.

BONUS MEASURE

Justed service compensation, nevertheless came in for a bitter attack on the floor today by advocates of the full cash payment option.

War veterans, particularly on the Democratic side, assailed the measure as a "disappointing gold brick" for its failure to provide the full cash option.

Under the agreement by which the bill will be taken up tomorrow, debate will be limited and amendments prevented, although a two-thirds majority will be necessary for adoption.

Most of the Democratic attack was directed more to this rule than declaring they would like the opportunity to propose a full cash payment option which was defeated in the committee by a vote of 12 to 11.

ONLY 6 JURORS

the arraignment which took place at 10:10 yesterday morning, the selection of a jury began immediately. Each prospective juror was closely questioned.

At Folts's side at the counsel table was Mrs. Hazel Folts, who is going to tell "all," and his attorneys, W. Cooke McKean, John Dugan, Jr., and H. M. Carroll. Mrs. Younkin has a place at the Commonwealth table.

The first juror to be called was Charles W. Kehler, superintendent of locks at South Brownsville. He was not in favor of capital punishment and was challenged by the Commonwealth for cause and sustained by the court. The second juror called was absent. Frank W. Pock then was called. He is a watchman for the county court house and jail.

admitted to doing extra work for the sheriff's office. He further stated that he had watched prisoners at the hospital and that he had done work for District Attorney Miller when he held office. On agreement of counsel

Joseph McKean, lender miner, admitted frankly "that he did not want to serve and just wouldn't." This created a smile and it was necessary for the tipstaffs to rap for order. Otherwise the juror had qualified. He drew the second peremptory challenge.

Patrick J. Reagan, of the East End, Uniontown, qualified, but he likewise used up another of the commonwealth "Peremptory."

Harry Conn, a Point Marion miner had conscientious scruples and was challenged for cause.

The first peremptory challenge to be issued by the defense, was used on Frank J. Holland, a plumber, of Connellsville.

Joseph W. Bunting, of Dunbar borough, almost was made a juror. He was accepted by the defense but the commonwealth used its fourth peremptory challenge.

Mrs. Anna Myers, of German No. 3, had conscientious scruples.

She was given a long examination that resulted in her being accepted by the commonwealth. The defense used its second peremptory challenge.

W. H. Trauer, of Uniontown, was accused by the court. It was explained illness would not permit of confinement.

Arch Kelley, of Lakehurst No. 1, has three daughters, aged 16, 18 and 19. After being questioned at length he was accepted by the defense but the commonwealth saw fit to use its fifth peremptory challenge.

Joseph W. Dixon, of the Fourth ward, Connellsville, aged 63 years, is a passenger conductor on the B. and O., running from Connellsville to Fairmont. When asked if he had read about the case, his answer was "Not much." In a moment he added, "I'll have to make a confession that I don't read much—Mrs. Dixon does most of the reading to me." He was accepted by the commonwealth but the defense saw a reason for using its third "peremptory."

Frank Blackshere, of Masontown, formerly resided at Carmichaels. He was readily accepted by the commonwealth but the defense challenged peremptorily.

Mrs. E. G. Rhoads, of Georges township, had scruples that would not let her qualify.

Ray Fullen was opposed to capital punishment.

Mrs. Charles Harrison, wife of the cashier of a bank in Masontown, said she had lived there for the last 14 years. She had read the head lines in the newspapers in reference to the tragedy.

Uram Pafnell was challenged by the commonwealth for cause.

Mrs. Oora B. Jordan, of Uppermiddlestown, said, when asked her views of capital punishment, "I just wouldn't do it; that is, I wouldn't like to," she added. Further questioning failed to alter her first attitude and she emphatically declared, "No, my mind cannot be changed for I would not condemn any man."

J. Ross Summers, of the Seventh ward, Uniontown, said that he knew Mrs. Folts' parents very well and that he had worked for Mrs. Folts' grandfather, Mr. Williams, at the Oak Grove cemetery. He was the eighth person to be challenged peremptorily by the commonwealth.

Mrs. Heeter Robb, of Connellsville, said, "I have formed an opinion of the case." She added, "No, I don't think my testimony could remove the opinion I have formed."

H. H. Byrner, a Uniontown march-ant, of the Sixth ward, had formed and expressed an opinion on last Sunday and he added, "The evidence would have to be pretty strong to change it." He was challenged for cause.

Roy Sanner, an employee of the Fayette Supply Company, had conscientious scruples and the commonwealth let him go on a challenge for cause.

Mrs. Lina Flinn, of Dunbar township, was passed by for the same reason.

Byron Lynn, of Point Marion, had discussed the case during the noon hour recess and had read the noon day edition of the local papers. "The commonwealth challenged 'peremptory'."

N. W. Delahunt, of the Fifth ward, Uniontown, was given a long drawn out examination. It finally developed that his opinion was so fixed he was convinced he could not render an impartial verdict.

Mrs. Folts and Mrs. Younkin were both in court yesterday.

Mrs. Folts was attired in a midnight blue, broadcloth coat suit, trimmed with jetted beads, a low neck, clearness light tan waist, a dark black poke bonnet, chocolate colored suede pumps with silk stockings to match. Around her neck she wore a brown fur fur choker and on her wrist was a gold wrist watch.

Shortly after Folts had been arraigned Mrs. Younkin took her seat at the Commonwealth's table. She is a decided brunette with dark gray sympathetic eyes and manifests a deep studying interest in every little matter. She is of a type directly opposite to the personality exhibited by Mrs. Hazel Folts. Both women did not allow the smallest detail of the opening of the case to escape their watchful eyes. Particularly is this true of Mrs. Folts who unconsciously shows her approval or disapproval in her facial expression of every answer given by the juror being examined.

ST. PATRICK'S BALL AND CARD PARTY ENJOYED

The annual St. Patrick's ball and card party at the Gallatin Gardens last night was very largely attended and was one of the most enjoyable ever held. Rob Royce and his 9 Collegians of Charleston, W. Va., provided excellent music and all who enjoyed dancing spent a delightful evening. For those who did not care to dance cards provided equally pleasant diversion. A number of handsome prizes were presented. During the intermission fancy solo dances, Irish jig and clog dances provided entertainment for all the guests. The affair was given under the auspices of the A. O. H. and the Ladies Auxiliary of the A. O. H.

MUSIC CLUB PROGRAM

"American Opera" was the subject of the program by the Uniontown Music Club last evening. Mrs. Mary Graham Mead was the leader and the evening was much enjoyed. The numbers by the three guest soloists, Mrs. Susan Brooks Rutherford, J. M. Delmonico and E. P. Goddard was particularly appreciated. During the brief business meeting, Mrs. P. P. Smith gave her final report concerning the benefit card party given at the Legion Home for the benefit of the picnic fund. A total of $693 was received. Plans for the Cadman recital to be given in April were discussed. Tickets will be placed on sale in the near future.

This evening members of the local club will present a program at the M. E. church in Point Marion at the invitation of the Point Marion Music Club. Members who are to take part will leave on a bus from the Fayetteville and Trust building at 8:45 o'clock. Any members of the club who desire to accompany them should be at the building a little before that hour. The general public is cordially invited to attend the concert.

RUSKIN CLUB HERE MARCH 27

The Ruskin Club, the dramatic organization of W. and J. University will present "Adam and Eva," a three act comedy at the local high school on Thursday, March 27th. The club has given the play at the Schenley Theatre, Pittsburgh, Butler and other cities with much success. Alumni of W. and J. as well as lovers of good comedy are looking forward to the entertainment. It is given under the auspices of the Uniontown Girls' Club. Mrs. Jessie Newcomer is chairman of the ticket committee. Downstairs seats will be reserved.

The second annual club banquet will be held at the Third Presbyterian Church at 8 o'clock this evening. The girls will celebrate the club's fifth birthday at this time.

A new course in china painting will commence Wednesday and additional enrollments will be received.

SERVE TURKEY THURSDAY

The Willard Bible Class, of the First M. E. church, will serve a turkey dinner at the old parsonage, corner of Fayette street and Beeson boulevard Thursday. The hours at noon will be from 11:30 to 1 o'clock and from 2 to 3. The general public is cordially invited to attend.

The court excused him from the case. The fourth called was the first woman, Mrs. Liburn Laird, residing at Vanderbilt. She was examined at length and was accepted by the defense.

After carefully scrutinizing her answers the Commonwealth challenged and after a first trial by counsel the court sustained the challenge.

Mrs. Nora Knight, of Jefferson street declared "she had a fixed opinion and that it would take mighty strong evidence to change it." She was challenged for cause.

Wealthy Farmer Accepted

Benjamin Baird, a wealthy farmer of Luzerne township, was the first juror to be selected. He is the son of Jeremiah Baird. He knew no facts about the case, but had read the story of the tragedy in the newspapers. He had fixed an opinion but that opinion could and would be laid aside, he said, if strong evidence was produced.

Walter O. Hay, a teamster, though born and raised in Connellsville, was readily accepted by both the defense and the commonwealth. He is married and has five children.

Miss Daisy Harford, a teacher from North Union township, did not answer to her name.

The ninth juror called was the Rev. O. J. Nichol, an M. E. minister of Point Marion. He has held a pastorate there for three and a half years. He formerly resided in South Greensburg, and in Center county where he stated he had seen many go to the electric chair.

David Kelley, of Fayette City, was challenged for cause when he declared he was opposed to the death penalty.

Discussed Case; Challenged

Miss Nellie Shriver was juror No. 11 to be examined. She comes from South Brownsville, where she is a clerk in the office of the Monongahela railroad. She admitted that she had discussed the case at length at the breakfast table this morning with Miss Bessie Campbell and her niece, Miss Edna Swan and that she had formed an opinion that could not be changed no matter how conclusive the evidence. When it was discovered after a 15 minute examination that her opinion was absolutely unalterable she was challenged for cause by the commonwealth.

Mrs. Sarah Ball, a resident of the Pittsburgh road just north of the city had conscientious scruples.

Adam Bryson, of Dunbar borough, knew the Polts family very well and had a fixed opinion. He was challenged for cause by the commonwealth.

The first peremptory challenge was used by the commonwealth when they challenged Lewis DeTemple of Connellsville. When asked if he had read the story he answered, "Can't read."

Opposed to Death Penalty

Mrs. C. H. Cuppette, of Perry township, made it plain that she had no use for the death penalty as fixed by law. She is the wife of the supervising principal of the public schools of Washington township. The commonwealth challenged her for cause.

Joseph McGee, Dunbar miner, admitted frankly "that he did not want to serve and just wouldn't." This created a smile and it was necessary for the tipstaffs to rap for order. Otherwise the juror had qualified. He drew the second peremptory challenge.

Patrick J. Reagan, of the East End, Uniontown, qualified, but he likewise

DOCTORS TESTIFY

Mrs. Foltz Weeps as Hyatt Is Grilled About the Shooting.

"Mr. Hyatt, you know me. I've shot one of your men and I want you to walk along to the police station with me," were the first words spoken by Jacob Foltz, now on trial for his life for the killing of Benjamin Younklin, on November 21, 1923. This was the testimony of J. L. Hyatt, yesterday, one of the first five witnesses in the sensational murder trial.

This morning will open the fourth day of the trial being heard before Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen in the large court room.

Five witnesses were examined yesterday afternoon and the commonwealth has its case well under way. The first three witnesses called were physicians and their testimony was largely technical. Dr. Coll, Dr. H. A. Heise and Dr. H. C. Hoffman were placed on the witness stand in the order named.

Wounds Are Described

Dr. Coll, of Connellsville, who attended Younklin at the Connellsville State hospital, testified that there were four gun shot wounds found in Younklin's body. The mortal wound was described as having entered the chest about two inches below the left nipple. There were two wounds under the left shoulder blade and another shot penetrated the body under the right shoulder blade. In the worst of the four wounds, the bullet had taken a downward course and had pierced the lung.

The question of shock entered the examination and Dr. Coll declared that chairmen made their reports promptly. There are still some small amounts to be turned in but the report is practically complete. The total amount received to date being $9,277.88. Of this amount 20 per cent remains to be Younkin suffered from a physical shock rather than a mental shock.

Dr. H. A. Heise, pathologist at the Uniontown hospital, was the second witness called and occupied the stand for more than an hour.

Dr. H. A. Heise, pathologist at the Uniontown hospital, was the second witness called and occupied the stand for more than an hour. Dr. Heise testified that he had been practicing medicine in Connellsville for the last 17 years. He was present at the Connellsville State hospital about 11:15 on the morning of November 11, 1932, and made an examination of Younkin at that time. He said, "I was not at the hospital when he was shot. He said, when he first saw the patient, he found him to be suffering from a very severe shock. The pupils of his eyes were dilated, his skin was leaking, the pulse was weak and faint and was in a surgical shock condition. The doctor explained to the court and jury the duties of a pathologist and fully described the course of the bullet from the wound. The bullet that is alleged to have been the direct cause of death, was extracted from the body of Younkin by Dr. Heise and was offered in evidence and identified by the jury.

Dr. Hoffman testified that he had been practicing medicine in Connellsville for the last 17 years. He was present at the Connellsville State hospital about 11:15 on the morning of November 11, 1932, and made an examination of Younkin at that time.

The cross examination of the defendant was being conducted by Attorney John Dugan. The attorney and Dr. Hoffman almost clashed over whether or not there was such a thing as a "mental shock." The physician declared there is no such thing as a "mental shock." He knew emphatically that a shock is only a physical condition. The post mortem examination had taken place at St. Mary's hospital in the presence of Dr. Heise, Dr. Coll and the witness. He left before the examination had been completed.

Frank Paladino, of Connellsville, was called to the witness stand. He testified he worked for the Hyatt Motor Company and was working at their place on the morning of November 21.

He could not positively identify Jacob Poliz, when the defendant was pointed out to him in the court room, as the man who had come to the garage on the morning of November 21. When pressed for an answer he replied "I won't say" but "his face is familiar to me." His testimony was completed when he said "I did not hear any shooting."

Employer Testifies

The principal witness of the afternoon was J. L. Hyatt, Younkin's employer, at the time the shooting took place and at whose place of business the fatal shots were fired. After describing his place of business and its location as being on the West side of Connellsville, on the corner of Crawford avenue and Second street, he said Mr. Younkin had been employed by him at various times since 1921 and that at the time of his being shot he was foreman of the repair department of his garage. He said that he knew Mr. Poliz when he saw him but that he was not acquainted with him. The witness had seen Poliz on the evening of November 17, in front of his garage, about 8:30 in the evening. Poliz had started the conversation on that Saturday evening by asking if Mr. Younkin was around and had been told by Mr. Hyatt that Younkin did not work in the evening. Poliz then inquired as to where Younkin lived and I told him in the north end of town some place. Poliz did not say anything but left. I saw him again that evening on the bridge.

Took Poliz to Jail

Continuing, Mr. Hyatt said: "I saw Mr. Poliz on the morning of Wednesday, November 21, in front of my garage. He was walking toward me and was about six feet away. He had on an overcoat and soft hat, peaked at and top heavy.

Asks First Degree

Declaring that the murder case in which Jacob K. Poliz is charged with killing of Benjamin R. Younkin, in Connellsville, last November has all the elements of first degree murder the Assistant District Attorney Dean J. Sturges, in opening the case yesterday morning asked the jury to render such a verdict. Mr. Sturges declared "We propose to show murder in the first degree in a premeditated and deliberate action, accompanied by an act of violence with a deadly weapon."

In closing the Commonwealth asked that a verdict of homicide in whatever degree the jury thought proper under the testimony, be returned. Following the opening, court took a recess until 1 p. m. when the first witness was called.

John Sturges' selection as juror at 10:40 Wednesday morning completed the jury to hear the testimony and the law as expounded by Judge Van Swearingen. In the Poliz-Younkin murder trial. At 10:50 counsel for the Commonwealth opened their case and the actual trial of Jacob Poliz that will determine his fate was started in earnest.

Continuing, Mr. Hyatt said: "I next saw Mr. Folts on the morning of Wednesday, November 21, in front of my garage. He was walking toward me and was only about six feet away. He had on an army overcoat and soft hat, peeked at the top."

That was the last time Hyatt saw Jacob Folts until after the fatal shots had been fired. "When I heard shooting," Hyatt said, "I was in the office in the sales room in the front part of the building. When Folts approached me and told me about shooting one of my employees, the first thing I did was to telephone for a doctor and then to the hospital. I did not wait for a response but started with Folts for the police station at his request." He held no conversation on the way to the police station. It was brought out in cross examination, however, that Hyatt had said to Folts, while they were in Hyatt's Ford coupe en route to City Hall:

"That was a hell of a thing for you to do."

Folts replied: "I don't know."

Mrs. Folts Weeps

When Attorney Duggan asked Mr.
Hyatt to illustrate the interval between the shots as he (Hyatt) heard them fired, Mrs. Hazel Folts lost her self composure for the first time and silently wept. The witness told the attorney he could not attempt to remember the intervals and after trying by various means to get an illustration from him Mr. Duggan had Hyatt rap with a folded piece of paper the manner in which he remembered as having heard the shots fired.

Hyatt testified that he saw a nickel plated revolver lying on the sidewalk on Crawford avenue in front of his garage. He had seen Hugus Bowman standing over the gun with it between his feet. Bowman works for Hyatt.

Those in the office with Hyatt at the time of the shooting were Thomas Davis, Ruth Harvey and Hugus Bowman.

Just after Hyatt had heard the shots, he left the office through the door of the salesroom and there he met Younkin coming in the door from the Crawford street entrance. Davis was with Hyatt. When they met Younkin, he said to them: "I'm shot."
Younkin went into the salesroom and sat down while Hyatt went for a car to rush him to the hospital.

When Hyatt went with Folts to the police station they at once went to the office of Chief Peter M. Murphy and Hyatt said "Here is a fellow who shot a man and wants to give himself up."

Asks Wife Be Told

The first words uttered by Younkin after he sat down in the salesroom was to request employees to telephone his wife. The office force did as requested and in a few minutes Younkin was on his way to the hospital.

At this point court took a recess until Thursday morning at 5 o'clock.

At 2:25 o'clock Thursday afternoon the examination suddenly terminated the case against Jacob Foltz, of Danbury, charged with the murder of Benjamin Youkin on the morning of November 21, last. The trial is in progress before Judge J. Q. Van Sweringen in court room No. 1. The reading of the prosecution's direct examination came quite unexpectedly and after a brief recess, Attorney John Dugan, Jr., opened the case for the defendant in a masterly and effective address to the court and jury in which he touched briefly on the testimony introduced by the prosecution and brought out the fact that the defense would show Jacob Foltz was "not a person of sound

PINCHOT SCORES JUSTICE DEPT.

Says Daugherty Should Retire from the Cool- idge Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 20.—The department of justice, under Harry W. Daugherty, attorney general, has failed in its task of defending the public domain and Mr. Daugherty "has no proper place in the cabinet," declared Governor Pinchot in an address tonight at the Lewisburg Presbyterian church. The Governor said that "the President himself found it necessary to take the all scandalous prosecutions away from the department of justice to which they rightfully belong."

"I have no personal quarrel with Mr. Daugherty," Governor Pinchot said. "On more than one occasion has he helped me in my efforts to enforce the law in Pennsylvania. I think of him not as an individual but as a symbol of a wrong conception of the duties of a public officer and of the failure to live up to his duties. A man does not belong in the cabinet merely because he has not been convicted of crime. I agree with Senator Pepper and Senator Harsh that, having lost the confidence of the President, and of the people, Daugherty has no proper place in the cabinet."

Civilian Clothes" Fine

Without doubt the "Dixie Playhouse" is presenting the classiest bill ever offered at this theatre in many years. "Civilian Clothes" is the real event in all directions. The lines in this bill or you may say play (as it is) is a creative dramatic offering with magic and youth specialists) are highly amusing and belong to regular road productions. Everything is good, scenery, wardrobe, acting, specialties, plot, etc. etc. It's the call's four parts and a rare treat for the critical theatre-goer. We advise lovers of a real show to see the Dixie today as it may be changed Saturday. Nothing ever in town ever proved superior when considering the size of this splendid company. And just what "Tom Casey Players" next week opening with the beautiful play "Smiling Thrill" followed by the wonder show "Shirley Labor" - 25 people recited Treasures March 21st. When She Met Younkia.

"I knew Benjamin Younkia in his life time. I became acquainted with him in April, 1912, some time during the second week. I met him in Greenville, Connellsville, in company with another man and woman by dress and appearance. I met him at the mine of eight o'clock in the morning on the West Side. I had room to Cooper (Continued on Page Twelve).

Connellsville on the street car from Dunbar. After I met Mr. Younkin on that evening we, the whole party of four, went to Chalk Hill by automobile, passing through Uniontown. We turned there and made the return trip, arriving in Dunbar some time between 11 and 11:30 o'clock. That was the first time I had ever seen Mr. Younkin.

"My husband was at home with the three babies. I met Mr. Younkin again and we continued taking auto rides throughout the summer. Others accompanied us on many of these rides until Decoration Day. After that we always went alone. These automobile rides continued until August."

"Was there any sex relation up to this time, was the question asked by Attorney McKean."

Refused intimacies.

Mrs. Foltz replied, "There was not." Continuing, she said: "He suggested closer relationship several different times, but because I refused, he did not persist and did not coax me. We took automobile rides once a week. These rides were always in the evening. In the beginning, we only went once a week. After awhile we went more often. My husband always kept the babies."

"My husband and I had an arrangement, whereby, I was to go one night a week anywhere I wanted to. I had been going to the movies. After I met Mr. Younkin, I always went with him. My husband never suspected me or found me out."

"One time when Mr. Younkin said the car was out of commission, I met him at the home of a friend of his. A man by the name of Ralph Morton. He had a flat or apartment in a building known as the old Newmyer Opera House. I was directed by Mr. Younkin how to find the place. When I went to the flat I met him at the second floor. He led the way up to the third floor, unlocked a door and said: 'Go in there. Ben will be here in a few minutes.' Mr. Younkin soon came. The room was an ordinary bed room, with a bed in it, a dresser and two chairs. About ten minutes after eight, Ben came in, shut the door and locked it and put the key in his pocket. Ben did not leave until six o'clock the next morning. I remained with him over night."

She yields to Younkin. "There was nothing happened until after 12 o'clock. We just talked. The last car left Connellsville for Dunbar at 11:30. He made a suggestion that I yield myself to him and I did that."

night.

"Shortly afterwards my husband went to Federal, W. Va., to work and then we met in my own home. He asked me if he might call on me in my own home. He made me care for him and eventually he made me love him more than I did my own husband. He had intimate relationship with me in my own bed room. The babies were asleep in another bed. During one of his visits he told me 'Every time I knock on your door, I am driving nails to my own coffin.' He carried an 18 inch wrench for 'protection'."

In September, he gave me a set of sweater pins. He also bought me candy and magazines.

On Wedding Anniversary.

"He had several intercourse with me on the 17th, 18th and 21st of November, 1937. I fixed the date of the 17th because it was my wedding anniversary. Mr. Younkin came that night about 8 o'clock. I had prepared a supper for 9 o'clock. While we were eating Mr. Younkin said, 'It seems rather peculiar for a woman to eat her wedding anniversary supper with some other man than her husband.'"

"I replied, 'It was a little out of the ordinary.'"

"We had sexual intercourse that night upstairs in my husband's bed."

"It was on this night the baby was born that caused the multitude of trouble that is still in evidence."

"It was at a point in the month when my condition was such that Ben said that would suit his purpose. He stated that he wanted an off spring, and that his preference was a male. I yielded because I wanted one just as much as he did." He said, "We can't name it Ben—but we will have a joke and a laugh on your husband."

"My husband came home the next day, November 18. He did not have an intimate relationship with me after I told him my condition. He never asked me to do so under those conditions. It was always my position to be regular."

"I first learned I was in a delicate condition shortly before Christmas. I informed Mr. Younkin and he said he was glad because that is what he wanted."

The Father of Bernice.

Mrs. Hazel Foltz at this juncture declared:

"Ben Younkin is the father of Bernice. She makes the fourth baby in the household."

"At one time I asked Mr. Younkin, she said, 'If he thought it was fair that Mr. Foltz should have to keep some one else's child.'"

"He replied 'If he gives you any money for the baby's clothes, use it on yourself for I will keep the baby myself.'"

"He told me that he thought it could be arranged that we could both go away together, that is, to leave our families."

In conclusion for the day's testimony, Mrs. Foltz said, "We always made our next meeting by prearrangement. Sometimes he would telephone."

Mrs. Foltz will resume the stand this morning.

Duggan Addresses Jury.

Attorney Duggan said, in his address opening the defense case, "It is proper in cases of this kind, in opening for the defendant, to dwell at some length on the testimony as introduced by the commonwealth. This we will not do but there are a few points in the commonwealth's testimony that I cannot pass up. We do insist that you be given all the testimony in the case. The dying declaration as made by Ben Younkin should have been offered in evidence."

Duggan Addressed Jury.
Attorney Duggan said, in his address opening the defense case, "It is proper in cases of this kind, in opening for the defendant, to dwell at some length on the testimony as introduced by the commonwealth. This we will not do but there are a few points in the commonwealth's testimony that I cannot pass up. We do insist that you be given all the testimony in the case. The dying declaration as made by Ben Younkin should have been offered in evidence by the commonwealth. If there had been anything wrong with it, it would have been our duty to call your attention to it. There was no malice in Jake Poltz's heart or he could have killed Ben Younkin while he was stooping over the car he was repairing. He could have peppered him to death. In the testimony we will offer you, using the common vernacular we are going to lay our cards on the table."

Continuing, Mr. Duggan said, in effect:
Jacob Poltz was one of six brothers, all of whom saw service in the late war. He was honorable, sober, serious and industrious. He toiled for his wife and little family. He was dead tired when he came home from his work and had no time for the little pleasures. But the mother, who had borne his children, also had her cross to bear and craved pleasures, her husband was unable to give her—so it happened, as it has since the beginning of time, that Ben Younkin crossed her path. He came into her life on April 22. Jacob Poltz was then home taking care of his babies.

Mrs. Poltz was out seeking harmless diversions and pleasures but slowly and systematically Ben Younkin preyed upon her vanity, told her of the thing he could do for her and the fact that there were other pleasures in this world besides staying in Dunbar and raising babies. So she fell, for the first time, in the summer of 1922.

Mrs. Poltz, the attorney said, will take the stand and will tell that she surrendered herself to Ben Younkin wholly and voluntarily in the summer of 1922, at the home of Ralph Morton, in Connellsville. She will say the attorney said, "he loved him better than life itself." So while Jacob Poltz stayed at home and minded the babies, his wife tried the "primrose pathway." She will testify, the attorney said, that Ben Younkin told her at her home that "every time I hammer at your door I am driving a nail in my coffin."

Continuing, Mr. Duggan said, in effect:

"We will show you that Ben Younkin had intimate relationship in the very bed of Jacob Poltz. We will be able to show that on July 14, 1922, the inevitable happened and Mrs. Poltz discovered that she was to pay the penalty. She realized what the future had in store for her—that Ben Younkin was the father of her unborn child.

The Storm Breaks.

"It was on August 14, 1922, that the baby was born. Little by little by Jacob Poltz Mrs. Poltz did not sleep. At times he mumbled to her to the garage, Ben Younkin standing."

"Among the with Ben Younkin and you," retorted: "The Maryland rail he made that mark, the us in right again it was an who pays."

not seeking barntless pleasures but slowly Jacob Polk wormed the story from Mr. Polk. Then there were days he did not sleep; days he did not eat. At times he would sit silently and mumble to himself. Finally he went to the garage and was bent on making Ben Younklin come to an understanding about the baby and Harold. "Among Jacob Polk's first words with Ben Younklin were 'You know me and you know my wife,' Younklin retorted: 'There are a lot of Western men and railroaders know her.' When he made that scathing, vile, vulgar remark, the slender thread that guided us in right and wrong broke and again it was true that it is the woman who pays and pays and pays."

"We will show you beyond the question of any doubt that, there is a streak of insanity in the Polk family, that a grandfather died insane and that an uncle and an aunt both died of insanity. We shall show you all this and will ask you for a verdict of acquittal based on the testimony submitted."

Mrs. Younklin Testifies. Called to the stand when court convened Thursday afternoon Mrs. Younklin, widow of the victim of the shooting, stated that she was taken to the hospital by Thomas Davis. She was told to wait in the rear room. She did not know for 10 or 15 minutes later what had happened to her husband. She said the first titillation came from Dr. Coll. She said she saw her husband at intervals from 11:30 until 3 p. m. At that time she conversed with him. "Helen I am not going to make it," the witness said he told her. "Oh, yes you will. Save your strength and energy and you'll get all right," she replied. "No I'm afraid not. He didn't give me a chance. If shot me down like a dog."

Made Statement to Chief. Following his arrival at the city hall Polk was not locked up until early in the afternoon. Chief Murphy testified he had a private conversation with Polk for 45 minutes and that he took the main part of Polk's statement "down verbatim" on the typewriter. He added, "I am not much of a typist and it took me a considerable time as I use the hush and touch system and as he spoke I typed it."

Visited By Mrs. Polk. Mrs. Polk and his brother visited him shortly after 1 o'clock and shortly after they left, Polk was placed in a cell in the Connellsville police station and the next day taken to the Fayette county jail in Uniontown. Jesse A. Oryber, Connellsville constable, took the stand and told of the finding of the gun. He identified the revolver. It is a nickel plated cheap gun, 33 caliber. Mr. Oryber will be recalled to the stand and denounced Mr. Duggan. Saw Younklin at Work. Russell Lambart, of Connellsville, told of seeing Younklin at work on the transmission of a Ford car on the morning of November 31 last. Younklin was working on the outside of the engine, he said. It was at this point that the shooting took place. One witness is ill. Thomas Babbie, of Connellsville, was called and did not answer to his name. It was afterward learned he was at home sick in bed. Hugen Bowman was called and also did not answer to his name. He is an employee of the Hyatt Motor company. Saw Shots Fired. "I heard two shots fired and the next moment I saw two shots fired," testified Mrs. George Richardson, Thursday morning. Mrs. Richardson is a Crawford avenue resident and (Continued on Page Fifteen)

TESTIMONY IN FOLTZ TRIAL IS CONCLUDED

Case Likely to Go to the Jury About 4:30 This Afternoon.

ALIENISTS HERE

Testimony in the Foltz-Younkin murder trial was completed at 12:15 Tuesday noon and a recess was taken until nine o'clock this morning when counsel for the commonwealth and the defendant will address the jury in review of their respective cases of testimony. Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen will charge the jury and the case will in all probability be given to them for deliberation and the return of a verdict about 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Assistant District Attorney Alfred E. Jones will make the address to the jury for the commonwealth and Attorney W. Cooke McKean will represent the defendant with a lengthy address. Mr. McKean will open for the defense shortly after nine o'clock this morning and his address will likely occupy the greater part of the morning. Court will follow its usual custom and adjourn at the noon hour until 1:30 when Mr. Jones will present the commonwealth's side of the case. It is estimated by those who are close observers that he will take about two hours. Judge Van Swearingen's charge will occupy about the usual length of time in cases of this character and it will be about 4:30 when the jury will file out of the court room for the jury room on the third floor of the court house to complete their duties as jurors. Wednesday marks the tenth day of the trial.

In announcing the recess, the court took occasion to say to the jury that the attorneys in the case would address the jury at length and under the existing conditions they would not be given the case for deliberation before late in the evening. It therefore was deemed advisable to take a recess until Wednesday morning when the entire case would be summed up and given into their hands for deliberation and a verdict. The recess was welcomed news to the attorneys in the case, as it will give them time in which to prepare their notes for their closing arguments. Wednesday will mark the tenth day of the trial and all court attaches and others interested in the necessary proceedings welcomed the closing hours of the legal struggle.

In cross examination Dr. Diller said in answer to a question by the defense as to "sanity and insanity,"
"I would compare with good and bad.
For practical purposes we should not resort to hair-splitting definitions."
Dr. McCready, commonwealth alien-ist, of Pittsburgh, took the stand and qualified as an expert. He corroborated his colleague Dr. Diller and though in different expression his testimony summed up indicated the same opinion as his predecessor.

FOLTZ TO SERVE 2 TO 4 YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

Other Sentences Imposed
in Local Courts on Saturday.

DAY'S COURT NEWS

Jacob K. Foltz, of Dunbar, convicted of the murder of Benjamin Younkin on March 24 was sentenced Saturday morning to from two to four years in the western penitentiary by Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen, the trial judge. Foltz was convicted for the killing of Younkin at Connellsville on November 21 last after one of the most sensational trials in the history of criminal courts of Fayette county. "Twilight Insanity," "Irresistible Impulse," and the so-called "Unwritten Law" entered largely into the defense in the 10 day trial.

Plea For Clemency

Both of Mr. Foltz's attorneys made pleas for clemency before the court prior to sentence being passed.

Mr. McKee talked for ten minutes reviewing briefly the history of the case and saying the case had been one of extreme provocation and certain elements of justification entering into the act of the defendant. He closed by saying whatever sentence the court saw fit to impose would be entirely satisfactory to Jacob K. Foltz, his counsel and the members of his family.

Attorney John Dugan talked for a few minutes before the court, saying the defendant had the sympathy of the entire community where he lived as well as where the shooting took place and that the circumstances around the case were such as to cause extreme passion and to dethronement of reason.

Judge Van Swearingen then called Jacob K. Foltz to the bar and sentenced him from two to four years in the Western Penitentiary.

Mrs. Foltz was not in court when sentence was passed. Neither were any of the other principals. All the counsel on both sides of the case were seated at the counsel table.

Foltz was attired in the same suit in which he attended the trial and was in his usual quiet demeanor. He nodded a slight assent of approval as the court passed sentence and it appeared a great load had been lifted from his mind.

Other Sentences Imposed

Charlie Adams was called for sentence before Judge Van Swearingen. He had been convicted of second degree murder following a dance at Bauck where he shot and killed another colored man who had usurped his couchette. Adams was given from 7 to 14 years in the Western penitentiary.

John Monte, of Brownfield, who ran down the daughter of "Pap" McCauley, a former Uniontown police officer, and broke her leg while he was driving his automobile in an intoxicated condition near her home at Uniontown, he pays the fine and costs.

Wm. A. Underbrand, white, and Whitfield Doney, colored, both of West Virginia, were charged with the transportation and possession of 20 gallons of liquor. Underbrand was fined $200 and 12 months to jail after serving 90 days he may pay the fine and costs and be paroled for one year.

Thomas Hinds of Oliver, another liquor violator, was sentenced to a fine of $150 and six months in jail. He will be paroled if the fine and costs are paid.

Counsel for James Little promised to have him in court for sentence on Saturday, April 12.

Leon Marina, of Bridgeville, is a truckman. He had 24 quarts of liquor in his possession. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $400 and serve 12 months in jail. If the fine and costs are paid after he has served 60 days he will be paroled for a period of one year. The liquor was being transported from Bridgeville to Republic.

Thomas Macanek was fined $400 and ten months in jail. After he has served 60 days he will be permitted to pay the fine and costs and a parole for one year will be entered into.

Joe Frassil, of Redstone township, was fined costs and $200 and eight months to jail. If the fine and costs are paid he will be paroled for one year.

Valent Jakowski was sentenced to pay a fine of $400 and nine months in jail. If the fine and costs are paid he will be given a one year parole.

Frank Walmer, of Georges township, who is employed by the Richmond Radiator company, was guilty of breaking the prohibition act. He was sentenced to the costs and a fine of $300 and to serve nine months in jail. He will be paroled for a year on the payment of the fine.

COAL OUTPUT

tons in 1922, and 146,311,000 tons in 1923, on the corresponding date.

Anthraxite production also took a sharp drop in the first week of the present month, but this is attributed almost entirely to the observance of the eight-hour holiday, when work practically ceased. The total output for the week is estimated at 1,548,000 net tons, a decrease of 394,000 tons, or more than 25 per cent, from that of the week before.

Production of anthracite to April 5 for the present year is estimated at 24,949,000 tons, against 27,470,000 tons at the same time last year.

Beehive coke production also declined, for the fourth successive week. The total output in the week ended April 5 is estimated at 231,000 tons, a decrease of 15,000 tons. This decline reduces the present rate of output to but 66 per cent of that prevailing a year ago. The decrease was confined to Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia, it being reported that production in the Connellsville region decreased from 217,200 in 1922 to 140 tons, and that 1,174 ovens are now idle.

Along with the drop in production, there was a sharp decline in the all-rail movement of bituminous coal to eastern New York and New England in the week ended April 5. According to the carriers' reports, 2,034 cars were forwarded against 3,065 cars in the preceding week. This was a decrease of 1,031 cars, or nearly 34 per cent. It is not yet clear, however,

Mrs. Younkin Defends Her Slain Husband

Funeral services for Benjamin
B. Younkin, who was killed by David K. Foltz in Connellsville Wednesday because, as the latter alleges, Younkin wrecked his home, will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Francis J. Scott, pastor of the United Presbyterian church of which Mr. Younkin was a member, will officiate. The victim was also a member of the church choir and the choir will render a number of selections at the services.

Mrs. Younkin declares that her husband has been faithful to her, just as he said in his dying statement, since before Christmas of last year. Scores of letters were received at their home from Mrs. Foltz, but they were all destroyed. The family is satisfied that he had absolutely no relations with the Dunbar woman since before Christmas, 1922. Mrs. Younkin knew of her husband having visited Mrs. Foltz prior to that time, but since then he paid no attention to her and has been close to his family.

Despite this fact, says Mrs. Younkin, Mrs. Foltz persistently called him by telephone and sent letters to the Younkin home. The shop foreman ignored the letters and spurned the telephone calls. He spent his evenings at home and when he did go out she accompanied him.
Younkin was the son of the Rev.
and Mrs. James A. Younkin of New Kensington. The father is the pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church there. Two sisters also survive. They are Mrs. Mabel Houls of Parnassus and Mrs. Ethel Hage of Woodlawn. A brother, James Younkin, is a student at Pennsylvania State college and another brother, Ray, is at home. The widow and four children also survive.

Younkin was a former service man, having enlisted with Company D, 110th Infantry. Foltz was also a service man, he having enrolled in the 12nd engineers. The funeral services will be conducted from the Younkin home, 815 Highland avenue.

MEAT PACKERS REFUSE TO OPEN BOOKS TO GOVERNMENT

(By United Press.)
Chicago, Nov. 23.—The packing interests of America centered in the great meat packing houses of Chicago today defied the United States to audit their books. Led by Swift & company and the Cudahy Packing company, the packers announced they would fight the order of Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, commanding them to make available their books and records to Federal auditors.

In citing reasons for objecting to the audit of the company's books Swift said he feared that government experts would become so familiar with the business methods of his company that competitors might hire them away from the government for the trade secrets they had learned.

of the garage of the Hyatt Motor company in the West Side, Connellsville, Whipping out his pistol he poured five shots into the body and then turning on his heel walked into the office of the company and informed Mr. Hyatt, the owner, of the circumstance and requesting that he be taken to the police station.

Foltz will be charged with homicide and will be removed to the county jail.

According to the statement made by Foltz before Chief of Police Peter M. Murphy at headquarters Younkin was guilty of improper relations with Mrs. Foltz. He said that on November 17 he found a letter, written by his wife to some man, but unaddressed. In it, Foltz' statement says, his wife wrote she was returning pearls given her by the man, remarking that she should never give pearls to a woman he loved as they brought only tears. The letter also said the man should number his family five instead of four. Foltz declared his wife confessed when he confronted her with the letter that their last born child, a boy, was the son of Benjamin Younkin. He also said that in the letter his wife wrote she had given "love, honor and virtue."

Foltz told Chief Murphy, in the statement, that his wife admitted she had been out riding with Younkin a dozen times and had given herself completely to him. He said he came to this city to see Younkin and when he asked the man if he knew him (Foltz), Younkin replied he did not. Asked if he knew Mrs. Foltz, he also replied in the negative, the statement says. Foltz declared when he found the man was "lying" he pulled the gun and began to shoot.

The shooting was witnessed by George Richardson, a miller at the plant of Perry & Henderson, and by Muriel Haines, a colored man. The latter disappeared when Foltz began firing and had not been located at noon.

Friends of Younkin said that the man frequently received calls from Mrs. Foltz but that he had paid no attention to them for a long time. Younkin, they said, declared it had been nearly a year since he had last seen her and that since then he had decided it was not the right thing for him to do and for that reason refused to pay further attention to her calls.

son, selected the notable cast, he it said that it is well balanced, and as such gave a very smooth performance, and a word of commendation is due others in less prominent roles. "Tribby" was directed by James Young and is a First National attraction.

HER GREATEST ROLE:

The most dramatic role she has ever had in motion pictures is what Elsie Ferguson says about her part of Miriam in her latest Paramount picture, "Outcast," which shows for the last times at the Penn today.

Miss Ferguson played the part on the stage in 1914, and to her screen interpretation she brings an understanding of the part gained by thorough study.

"I feel that I have done the best work of my career on the screen in this picture," said Miss Ferguson. "The part of Miriam is full of poignant drama, the kind I love. I firmly believe the picture will be a much better one than 'Footlights' which I made a little more than a year ago."

Children's Home Gift Received Next Saturday

Gifts for the Children's Home will be received Saturday, according to announcement by officials of the Children's Aid society of Fayette county today. This is the annual ingathering of winter supplies for the home and this year is expected to surpass all previous affairs of the kind. There is greater demand just now on the resources of the home and a greater need for the sustaining support of its friends.

While gifts of all kinds will be acceptable, the committee is particularly desirous of obtaining supplies of vegetables, canned fruit, jellies and staples that may be used through the winter. Coal, potatoes and similar necessities will be exactly what is desired. Those who prefer may make their contributions in cash, the committee later supplementing the gift totals with additional supplies most needed.

The Children's Home is a county institution and the gifts should come from interested and sympathetic people from all parts of Fayette. The ladies of the society will be at the home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock to personally receive the gifts and to conduct visitors over the house. The public is cordially invited to make a personal visit at this time and see just what work is being done. Those who may wish to make donations but who are unable to send them to the home should call Bell 1749 or Tri-State 716 and an automobile will be sent to get the gifts. This should be done Saturday morning before noon, however.

The fire was aimed chiefly at the soldiers, many of whom fell. One of the soldiers was killed outright, four were wounded so seriously that they were not expected to recover and 17 others received serious injuries. MRS. FOLTZ HAD NO CHANCE TO WARN YOUNKIN

She Told the Wounded Man's Wife at Hospit- al Day of Shooting.

IS NEAR COLLAPSE

Father of Defendant and Mother of Mrs. Foltz Testify.

Interest was at a fever heat in the Foltz-Youngkin murder trial on the fifth day of the case, in hearing before Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen in court room No. 1.

Foltz is charged with the killing of Benjamin Youngkin, of Connelville on the morning of November 21, last, at the Hyatt garage on the West Side, Connelville.

The largest crowd that has been in Fayette county's court house was present at the Friday afternoon session to hear the testimony of Mrs. Hazel Foltz who had occupied the stand since 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. She continued on the stand until 4:15 Friday afternoon, after more than eight hours of being subjected to the limelight and questioning and being grilled in cross examination.

Relatives Dixmont Patient.

Following the noon recess, Dr. H. A. Hutchinson, superintendent of the Dixmont Insane Asylum, was placed on the stand for a brief period to prove that an uncle of the defendant, Henry W. Foltz, had been an inmate of the asylum from 1902 to 1907, when he was discharged and that an aunt, Mrs. Christine Nicholas, was twice admitted to the institution as a patient. She was there in the years of 1919 and 1920. Dr. Hutchinson has been the superintendent of the asylum for the last 35 years.

Mrs. Foltz Again Called.

At the conclusion of his testimony, Mrs. Foltz again resumed the stand in direct examination by the defense. She told how her husband continued to act on the last morning he was at home, just before the murder of Benjamin Younklin. He was very nervous and wouldn't talk. He went to the home of his father for a short time and soon returned. That was the last time Mrs. Foltz saw her husband until after the murder. When she saw him next, he was in the mayor's office at City Hall, Connellsville. Though she tried to hold a conversation with her husband there she could get very little satisfaction from him.

At 2:35 o'clock, the examination in chief was concluded and the witness was turned over to the commonwealth for cross examination. Mr. Jones conducted the examination and at once began an unrelenting grilling and delving into the details recenses of Mrs. Foltz' testimony in chief.

Saw Mrs. Younklin.

Among new thoughts that were brought before the court and jury were the following facts to which Mrs. Foltz gave testimony.

"On the afternoon after the shooting, I went to the hospital and saw Mrs. Younklin there. I talked with her for about ten minutes. I told her how very sorry I was that it happened. I was in Michigan for a week in October, in 1923. I had gone there hurriedly in response to a message telling me of the illness of my brother, Jack Kramer, who was working at Herton Harbor at the time."

When Mrs. Foltz admitted that she saw "Mrs. Morton" and had talked with her, Assistant Attorney Jones called on Mrs. Weimer, (Mrs. Morton) to testify. When he questioned the witness to know if that was the woman she knew as Mrs. Morton, the witness asked that she come closer and removed her glasses. She complied with the request and was identified as Mrs. Morton.

Mrs. Foltz returned earlier. Attorney Jones drew out of Mrs. Foltz the fact that she had given back at one time 25 letters to Ben Younklin that he had written her. She returned the letters at his request.

Again the "distasteful subjects" were referred to and Mr. Jones forced Mrs. Younklin to admit "that she had occasional sexual intercourse with Mr. Foltz, the same as she was having with Mr. Younklin up until the time her child was born on August 14, 1923."

Foltz Burned Necklace.

The "famous pearl necklace" that figured so prominently in the "fateful letter" was again the subject of interest. Mr. Jones brought out the fact that the necklace was burned up in the kitchen stove by the wronged husband.

Mrs. Foltz said he did this after he had asked her "if she cared anything now for the man." "To this I replied, 'No,' she said.

"He then said, 'well you don't want anything that belonged to him do you?' I again replied, 'No.'"

"When Mr. Foltz had first asked me where I had gotten the pearl necklace, I told him it had been a Christmas present from my father and mother."

Witness Near Collapse.

After a vain effort to conceal her feelings the little woman at this juncture was in a pitiable condition and in a faltering voice asked for a glass of water. In another moment, she had given vent to her feelings and cried freely. However, after a few moments she regained her normal attitude and was soon able to resume her answers to the assistant district attorney's questions.

One of the most damaging utterances that so far has fallen from the lips of a witness was from Mrs. Foltz when Mr. Jones obtained the answer to an alleged conversation with Mrs.

Felen Younklin at the hospital on the afternoon of the crime.

Said Mrs. Younklin to Mrs. Foltz, "If you knew that he was after Ben why didn't you warn him?"

No Chance to Warn Ben. Mrs. Foltz replied: "I didn't have a chance."

The prosecution appeared to lay much stress on this answer and at once closed their cross examination of the witness.

O. C. Harmon, city clerk, of Connellsville, was placed on the stand next to identify the much talked of "dying declaration." Mr. Harmon had written it at the dictation of the mortally wounded man. The typewritten copy was then made by Miss Hoffman, hospital stenographer. Mr. Harmon identified both the instrument and said it was his signature that had witnessed the statement.

Dying Statement Offered.

Mr. McKean, of counsel for the defendant offered the declaration as "commonwealth exhibit D." It was read into the record. The declaration also bears the seal of the city of Connellsville. Mr. Sturgis, of the district attorney's office, made no objection to the offer of the declaration.

The court overruled him and the document was placed on record. The main body of the offering follows:

Contents of Statement

Question—"What time did Mr. Foltz come around?"

Answer—"About 10, 10:15 or somewhere around there. A colored fellow came and asked me to do some work on a transmission. I went outside where I was when Foltz came. He said, 'Younklin, I want a word with you.' I said alright. I put four screws in the transmission cover, picked up my tools and went over, when he says 'Do you know me?' I said 'I know who you are.' He says, 'Do you know my wife?' I said 'I know who she is.' He says, 'You have been with her.' I said, 'Quite a bunch around the Western Maryland had been with her. I made a mistake going out with her.' Then he pulled the gun and shot. When he pulled the gun, I struck at him with my right fist, but he joked. I wanted to get close, and kept swinging around trying to dodge the bullets. Then went into the office. Didn't have the guts to handle me bare fisted."

"Tommy Daven asked 'What is the matter?' I says a fellow shot me. Somebody says 'Go to a doctor.' J. L. says 'Take him to the hospital.' We got into J. L.'s car, could not start it, and got in another car."

"I hate to disappoint Al Ridge. He went to a wedding and gave me eight dollars."

Mr. Cypher Testifies

Connellman Jess E. Cypher, of Connellsville, was called for the defense. Mr. Cypher was a commonwealth witness in the early stages of the trial. Mr. Cypher carried the gun with which the crime was committed from the scene of the crime to the police station and turned it over to Chief of Police Murphy. When Cypher arrived at the station house he found Mr. Murphy sitting on one side of the table and Jacob Foltz on the other in the private office of the Mayor.

The witness said: "Foltz asked me if I would call his brother. I said

rel. Mr. Jones brought out the fact that the necklace was burned up in the kitchen stove by the wrong person.

Mrs. Polts said he did this after he asked her "if she cared anything for the man." "To this I replied, 'No,' she said. "He then said, 'well you don't want anything that belonged to him do you?' I again replied, 'No.' "When Mr. Polts had first asked where I had gotten the pearl necklace, I told him it had been a Christmas present from my father and mother.

Witnesses Near Collapse.
After a vain effort to conceal her feelings the little woman at this juncture was in a pitiable condition and a faltering voice asked for a glass of water. In another moment she had given vent to her feelings and sobbed freely. However, after a few minutes she regained her normal attitude and was soon able to resume her answers to the assistant district attorney's questions. One of the most interesting facts that so far has fallen from the lips of a witness was from Mrs. Polts when Mr. Jones obtained the answer to an alleged conversation with Mrs.

Dying Statement Offered.
Mr. McKean, of counsel for the defendant offered the declaration as "commonwealth exhibit D." It was read into the records. The declaration also bears the seal of the city of Connellsville. Mr. Sturges, of the district attorney's office, made an objection to the offer of the declaration.

The court overruled him and the document was placed on record. The main body of the offering follows:

Mr. Cypher Testifies

Connellman Jess E. Cypher, of Connellsville, was called for the defense.

Mr. Cypher was a commonwealth witness in the early stages of the trial.

Mr. Cypher carried the gun with which the crime was committed from the scene of the crime to the police station and turned it over to Chief of Police Murphy. When Cypher arrived at the station house he found Mr. Murphy sitting on one side of the table and Jacob Polts on the other in the private office of the Mayor.

Mr. Cypher was permitted to answer the question as to the general condition he found Polts in. The commonwealth had objected to the question as offered by the defense. The court overruled the objection. Mr. Cypher said: "Polts was extremely nervous. He could hardly sit on the chair and was continually turning and twisting. At times he broke down and cried. Though I was in the police station but a short time, he smoked ten or twelve cigarettes. He was a long time making up his mind to make his confession to Chief Murphy. When he was ready to do so I did not want to hear it and got up and left."

Mrs. Foltz Had

Mrs. Foltz was called to the stand and testified that John Williams and Caroline Williams, of Canton, were her parents. Her husband is Theodore Foltz. She corroborated her daughter's testimony in reference to Mrs. Foltz having seen Younkin at her home. She had also seen Younkin at the home of Mrs. Foltz in January. In her examination, she said Mr. Foltz had been at her home many times, both with her daughter and alone. His visits continued up until the time that he had sent the ill-fated letter.

Foltz' Aged Father Called
David O. Foltz, the aged father of Jacob Foltz, was next called to the witness stand. He was asked if he had both a brother and sister, who had at one time been patients at the Dixmont Asylum. Mr. Foltz declared that he had not.

Immediately following David Foltz, his daughter, Mrs. Kathryn Carroll, the wife of Attorney R. M. Carroll, was qualified as a witness and said in reply to Mr. McKean's question "As a matter of family history your uncle, Henry Foltz, and your aunt, Catherine Nicholas, were confined in the Dixmont Asylum, were they not?" Mrs. Carroll promptly replied, "Yes."

Mr. McKean took occasion to say to the witness: "Your father did not remember this fact." Mrs. Carroll said: "Mr. McKean, at times father can't remember." She was stopped at this point by Mr. Jones, for the commonwealth, and the witness was excused.

Court adjourned until Saturday morning at nine o'clock.

How Benjamin Younkin conspired to have Mrs. Foltz write a letter which his wife would find and how he would write one that would fall into the hands of Mr. Foltz, rich to serve as divorce evidence, was testified Friday morning by Mrs. Foltz. She declared that they had planned to marry after either Mrs. Younkin or Foltz had secured a divorce.

"When we discussed the matter of going away," stated Mrs. Foltz, he said he would take me away and we would be married. He told me that first we would both have to lay our

NOTE THAT CAUSED ALL TROUBLE IN FOLTZ FAMILY.

"I am returning your pearls, as requested, and thanks for the enjoyment of them for a year. But never give pearls to any one you care for, again, as they bring nothing but tears."

You have taken everything I had to give, virtue, honor, happiness and your love, and given me nothing but your miniature self. That, thank Heaven, you can't take away from me, because so long as she lives she will be a gentle reminder of you, and the fact that I shall never trust to love, again.

May you be just as happy in your family, as you think you deserve to be, but number them five, instead of four, hereafter."

They were open for divorce. He had me write him a letter. We composed it together in my own home.

Wanted Wife to See Letter

He said he would leave the letter where his wife would find it. Later he told me she found the letter and raised a considerable disturbance about it. He told me that he believed that his wife would get a divorce as she had put the matter in the hands of her attorney. These letters were discussed in February, 1922, Mrs. Foltz said.

"The other letter I referred to is one that Mr. Younkin had written me for the same purpose. I know what he told me and what another party told me about it. Mr. Younkin told me the letter was perfectly all right. I asked him what was in the letter, but he wouldn't tell me and I never saw it."

Month Before Babe Came

Mrs. Foltz testified that she was intimate with Younkin the last time on July 14, just one month before her daughter, Bernice, was born. During the eight months previous to that time, the witness said, the unborn child was discussed frequently and that Younkin promised to take care of the babe and wished many times for a boy. He told Mrs. Foltz, according to her testimony, that he would provide for the baby but all he ever gave her was $10.

Then His Love Grew Cold

The witness stated that she never heard from Younkin after the baby was born.

"I mailed him a letter about the baby's birth," Mrs. Foltz testified. "I gave a little boy the letter to mail for me. He came to my bedside for the letter. This was the second day after the baby was born. The letter had been written two days after the birth of Bernice. I got no reply. He never offered to come to see me again."

Demanding Return of Presents

"Through a mutual friend, Younkin demanded that I return his presents—a string of pearls and a net of plus. I did not return them. I did write between the middle of October and the first part of November but it was never mailed."

Note Placed in Evidence

Attorney McKean placed in evidence the letter written by Mrs. Hazel Foltz. He first showed it to counsel for the commonwealth. The letter was exhibited and will be known as defendant's exhibit "A."

The letter was shown to Mrs. Foltz and she was asked to identify it as the letter she had written to Mr. Younkin. The letter was unaddressed and was not signed. The letter in question is the fateful letter found by Jacob Foltz.

On Her Wedding Anniversary

"I wrote the letter in question in my own home. I did not mail it because I did not know where to mail it. I put the letter under a brown paper lining in the bottom of the drawer. I know that my husband found the letter on Saturday, November 17. That was our wedding anniversary. I found him on the floor before the dresser. I had been at a neighbor's house and just as I came in the house I heard a dull thud and after listening a few minutes I went up to the room and found Mr. Foltz lying on the floor. He showed me the letter in about five minutes. He was lying on the floor. I helped him to arise. He grabbed me by the throat and pushed me back on the bed. He let go of me almost immediately and told me to get up. He asked me if I had written the letter. I replied, 'Yes.'"

"He asked me why I had written it and I did not reply."

Mrs. Foltz Breaks Down

Attorney McKean then read the letter to the jury. During the reading, Mrs. Foltz broke down completely and wept pitifully, worse than at any time since she has been in court. A pin could be heard in the jammed to capacity court room as Attorney McKean in his inimitable manner, in a low clear voice read the missive to the jury.

Intense Scene in Courtroom

It was some minutes before Mrs. Foltz regained her composure. Attorney McKean went to her on the witness stand and talked in low tones. A tipstaff brought her a glass of water and the moments in the court room were filled with an intensity that Intense scene in courtroom. It was some minutes before Mrs. Foltz regained her composure. Attorney McKean went to her on the witness stand and talked in low tones. A tipstaff brought her a glass of water and the moments in the court room were filled with an intensity that beggars description as the little woman in a supreme effort slowly regained her self composure. After a five minute delay, Mrs. Foltz resumed. She said her husband had been working that day.

"The room where Mr. Foltz fell was our bedroom immediately over our living room," she said. "After he released me we stayed in the room and he became very calm and quiet. He asked me to sit down and we talked over what had happened. We sat down in two rockers facing each other. He began by asking why I had written the note.

First Refuses to Tell
"Is it true, he asked?"
"I replied, 'I won't tell you.'"
"He insisted and wanted to know who it was. I said 'No I won't tell you. If I would I am afraid you would make trouble for them and trouble for me.' I had no reason to be afraid of him, but knowing what I had done, I was afraid."

"Any other man would be the same as he was under similar conditions."

Promised Not to Make Trouble
"No I will not make trouble for you or any one," he said. "But whenever this baby belongs to has got to come and get it and keep it."

"This was said after he had arisen and stood by the window. He then came back and sat down and began his questions all over again and insisted and insisted."

Tells Name of "the Man"

Mrs. Foltz testified that at first she told her husband that the letter was written to "a man in Connellsville." When he continued to question and re-question her, Mrs. Foltz said she told him that the man worked at Hyatt's garage, lived in Fairview avenue and that his name was Benjamin Younkin.

The witness then described queer actions by her husband. He talked aloud to himself, at times failing to notice the children and Mrs. Foltz.

"If I Had Only Known"

"I could hear him say," continued Mrs. Foltz, "Oh, my God! If I had only known before."

On Saturday evening when he left home, the little wife stated that he said he was going to Connellsville to see "that man if he could find him and tell him he would have to take the baby away."

Paces Floor, Eyes Glassy

Mrs. Foltz declared that from Saturday night when he found the note until Wednesday, the day of the shooting, her husband ate virtually nothing but drank dozens of cups of coffee. At times he would pace the floor and talk to himself. She said that his eyes were glassy and his face flushed. At times he did not seem to know what was going on around him. On Monday and Tuesday he suffered chills.

Repeatedly Questioned Wife

"He repeatedly asked me about the whole affair and I had to repeat it over and over again to him," asserted the witness. "He talked about nothing else but the trouble we had had."

On Tuesday before the shooting he did not recognize the children.

Moves Furniture About

Tuesday night, the day before the shooting, Mrs. Foltz said that her husband-retired, stayed in bed only a few minutes, arose, paced up and down the floor and moved about virtually all the furniture in the house. She said that he advised her to go to bed and go to sleep as he could not.

Details of Intimacy

Details of her intimacy with Benjamin R. Younkin were recited Friday morning by Mrs. Hazel Foltz, wife of Jacob K. Foltz, on trial before Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen on a charge of murder. Mrs. Foltz who spent more than an hour on the witness stand Thursday was recalled Friday morning when court convened. On account of a delay in the arrival of the morning train court convened a half hour late.

Mrs. Foltz declared that she and Younkin met on Decoration Day of 1922 and also were together on the first Sunday in June and July 3 and July 5.

Mrs. Foltz Fools Mother

On Decoration Day she stated they went by street car to the Alverton cemetery to view the grave of a brother.

"I left Dunbar by street car and he boarded the car at Connellsville," Mrs. Foltz said. "My parents reside at Alverton. We went to my home and met my mother and sister. I introduced Mr. Younkin to my mother as Jake's cousin, Ben."

"We had arranged to meet on July 3 and were to have met on the next day but we did not succeed in keeping our engagement. On the fifth he phoned me and I met him the next day."

"On the fourteenth day of September we met at the home of a friend in Dunbar. I don't remember the exact dates I met Mr. Younkin from that time until after Christmas of 1922."

"My delicate condition dated from November, according to evidence covered by the rules of nature."

"I continued to meet Mr. Younkin following my husband's return from West Virginia, where he had been working. Mr. Foltz returned on December 23.

Owed Two Dollars For Room

"After that date we met at the Ralph Morton apartment from January 1 to early in March. Sometimes we went there in an auto. Our intimacy continued over that period."

"At Morton's home I met a woman who called herself Mrs. Morton. I also saw another man and another woman there. Mr. Younkin always told me he was a friend of Mr. Morton."

"I went to the Morton home one night to meet Mr. Younkin and when he did not come I told Mrs. Morton that I must go home. I requested her to tell Ben that I couldn't wait. She replied that she hoped he would come as he owed her $2 from the last time."

"This was the first intimation I had that Ben was paying for the room we had occupied. This was the last time we ever visited the Morton home."

PITTSBURGH STEEL WORKER HEIR TO $200,000 ESTATE OF BROTHER HE HAD NOT SEEN FOR 60 YEARS

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 24. Thomas Gemmell, a steel worker, today learned through a newspaper advertisement that he had been named a beneficiary in the estate of his brother, John Gemmell, whom he had not seen for 60 years. The latter died recently at Nanaimo, British Columbia, and, according to information here, left his estate valued at $200,000 to his brother. The advertisement seeking information regarding Gemmell was inserted by the Standard Trust Company, of Vancouver, British Columbia.

Gemmell at first declared he would waive rights to the estate, stating that he preferred the simple life and that he had saved enough to keep his wife and himself "in a manner that suits us." He later declared, however, that he would communicate with the Vancouver bank for the benefit of a niece who had made her home with him since childhood.

Gemmell declared that he last saw his brother when John Gemmell left their home near Glasgow, Scotland, and came to America. Gemmell followed some years later but they had not been in close touch with each other he said.

LOVE NOTES READ

Nearly the entire day was occupied yesterday, in the Foltz-Yunkin murder trial, by the defense in examining in chief and the commonwealth in cross examining the defendant's two alienists, Dr. Edward E. Mayer and Dr. Paul H. Franklin. The case grew out of the murder of Benjamin Yunkin, of Connellsville, by Jacob Foltz, of Dunbar. This morning will open the ninth day of the murder trial.

The examination of the two noted specialists was almost entirely technical and it was with some effort that the counsel for both sides succeeded in having the physician reduce their testimony to such language that was in terms of understanding to those not informed in medical terms.

Dr. Franklin, in qualifying said, he was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania in 1899. He is a specialist in the diagnosis of all forms of mental and nervous diseases. He qualified as an expert. The doctor defined shock as having two varieties, surgical and mental. The former may be occasioned by a wound, etc., and the latter by the sudden news of some unexpected occurrence. Both are somewhat similar in effect. In sufficient amount of blood for functional. A mental shock gives a variety of symptoms and shows a dilation of the pupils of the eyes, the body freely perspiring and an extreme nervousness.

"Insanity" is Defined.

Dr. Franklin defined "insanity" as a term used to designate abnormal functioning of the mind. It may be due to the three classified causes: A structural change of the brain, such as senile dementia, or praeia; chemical poisoning, as typhoid fever, pneumonia, delirium, alcoholism or lead poisoning; and psychological causes, acting on the brain or mind, such as an "irresistible impulse" or an "amenable state." The doctor said that insanity manifests itself in many ways and could be determined either by those skilled or unskilled in the science of medicine. In delusional insanity, the patient might be a successful business man and the matter of his insanity would go undiscovered, possibly for a great many years.

The physician defined senile dementia, praeoxia, dementia praecox and paranoia. The witness had seen and examined Jacob Foltz during the second week of February, 1924, and also on Wednesday evening, March 19.

Declares Foltz Was Insane

When the facts as he had observed them were reduced to an opinion, Dr. Franklin declared "that Jacob Foltz was insane at the time of committing the act and was the victim of an irresistible impulse arising from or produced by a condition of mental disease affecting volition rather than perception, and while thus afflicted, one may fully understand an act but not have the power to control the impulse to prevent the act. He may be fully aware of the nature and consequences of his act and nevertheless that it is wrong but on account of his mental disease control is entirely impossible and the 'irresistible impulse' asserts itself. The expert was on the stand for several hours and entered into many intricacies of the case.

Jury Taken Ill

Miss Harris, of Brownsville, juror No. 10, became so ill at 4 o'clock that it was necessary for the court to order the entire jury to their quarters. They returned at 4:15 and the case was continued but 25 minutes until the young woman again was obliged to retire, thus necessitating the entire jury to suspend the hearing for the remainder of the day. The court directed the jury to retire and declared a recess until Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Irresistible Impulse

When Jacob Foltz fired the fatal shot at Benjamin R. Younkin he was insane, according to the testimony of

Dr. Edward H. Mayer, noted psychiatrist of Pittsburgh, who declared "I would say it is my opinion that this man had a twilight or abnormal mental state which led him to an irresistible impulse and that this constitutes insanity."

Mr. McKean asked the alienist what was to be understood by the term "irresistible impulse." The physician explained that "though the perspective power had an understanding of right and wrong, it was guided by an impulse that made resistance impossible, this condition growing out of a diseased condition of the mind."

Impulse Is Explained

Dr. Mayer further explained that "impulse" was a sudden action, in the compelling force of an emotion, or the disposition to act without reflection.

Asked for a clearer understanding of the term "volition," Dr. Mayer said it was a term for "will to do, to think for." Perspective implied, to understand, to reason, to think for, to remember.

Summed up, "irresistible impulse" was a human being's intense craving to satisfy the will by gratification.

The psychological cause was explained as an adjustment to environment and to take measurements of his mentality to keep him in his environment.

Love Letters Read

Two love notes, written by Mrs. Hazel Foltz, to Benjamin R. Younkin, proved a big sensation of the morning session of the Foltz murder case now in its second week before Judge J. G. Van Swearingen. Contained in the "pink letter," which Younkin and Mrs. Foltz had composed together and which according to a pre-arrangement fell into the hands of Mrs. Younkin, were expressions of the burning love of Mrs. Foltz for the victim of the shooting. This misadventure was intended to form the grounds for a divorce suit which was expected to be brought by Mrs. Younkin.

The famous "pink letter" follows:

Sweetheart—

I have been sorry a million times over for the last letter I wrote you.

I don't know what possessed me, unless it was just the contrary streak in my blood, that made me write. You have been here for a minute and gone and from the disappointment in my heart I have the answer as to whether I love you or not.

Ben dear, I do, with all my heart and soul. I love you so much that it really hurts. We may have some trouble, no doubt we will, but I am willing to face my share, just as I would for Ruth. The harder the storm, the sooner it will be over, and remember there is always an "after." Just to have you cuddle me and kiss me, dear, is all I care to have, and when I get a little upset, you will know that it is because you aren't loving me enough, that is, giving it expression. It seems too good to be true that some one loves me well enough to go to as much trouble to see me as you do. I'm not used to being loved and I don't appreciate it as much as I should. I'm wild about you honey, and I'd just like to love you until you'd beg for mercy. We have been so happy in the last few weeks. I wonder how long it's going to last. Just to go away up to our "House of Dreams" to settle down in big cozy chairs by an open fire. Just we two out of all the world, and to know that

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

WHAT IS A ONE-CENT SALE?

It is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price—then another item of the same kind for 1c. As an illustration: The standard price of Jontel Vanishing Cream is 50c. Every article in this sale is a high class standard piece of merchandise, just the same as we sell you every day at regular prices and have sold you for years.

and I'd just like to love you until you'd beg for mercy. We have been so happy in the last few weeks. I wonder how long it's going to last. Just to go away up to our "House of Dreams" to settle down in big cozy chairs by the time had come when we could do and say as we pleased, would be heaven to me and you also. I think the colder the wind blow the more comfy we would be. I could sit by your chair and lay my head on your knees, dear, you and our life together. It will be happy, darling, because it's

One of 24 Letters
One of the 24 letters which Mrs.
Folts admitted had been written to Younkin was also read to the jury.
Both were introduced by Attorney John Duggan, Jr., one of the attorneys for the defense.

These letters were given to Attorney H. George May by Mrs. Younklin when she planned to have Mr. May start action for divorce.

The second letter follows:
My dearest:

Our affairs are certainly going to be muddled now. How I shall endure it is yet to be learned, but I know that it is going to be hard.

But, if you may not come to me again, the house is full of happy memories for me. I can close my eyes, dear, and imagine you in a dozen different places. No one can prevent that.

It seems honey, that I want you more today, if possible, than I ever have yet. You are so sweet, clean and lovable, dear, and I know your mind and heart are as clean as your outward appearance.

You don't know the satisfaction that it means boy, because of it, for you will never know what I have to contend with here.

Don't get discouraged dear, about your work, for you will surely get what you want in the end. Any one who isn't satisfied, but is always looking for something better, certainly should succeed. Try, try again. Honey you may be sure I shall always glory in what luck you have, and if love and lots of love will help you know you have mine always.

Manslaughter Verdict Found Against Foltz

IN JURISPRUDENCE; IRRESISTIBLE
IMPULSE, DEFINED, IS ACCEPTED

Court's Charge to Jury Defines Salients; Presents Law Affecting Them; Discusses Possible Verdicts; Reasonable Doubt Defined.

Following a lengthy and complete review of the testimony in both direct and cross-examination, outstanding features in Judge Van Swearingen's charge to the jury in the Foltz murder trial were as follows:

Unless there is evidence tending to show the contrary, there is a presumption of murder under the law arising from the use of a deadly weapon upon a vital part of another's body resulting in death, but this presumption of law rises no higher than murder of the second degree. The law regards the circumstance that a deadly weapon was used as evidence that a specific and malicious intention to kill existed. The jury may infer such intent from the use of such a weapon.

from the single fact that a deadly instrument was used, but it is for the jury in every case to derive their own conclusion as to the intent from the circumstances which the case dis-closes.

Verdict Received by the

"Guilty of voluntary manslaughter."
That was the verdict returned last night at 10:45 o'clock in the Foltz-Younklin murder trial, by the jury which had retired for deliberation at 3:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The jury was out just seven hours.
The trial grew out of the murder of Benjamin Younklin, of Connellsville, by Jacob Foltz, of Dunbar, on November 21, 1923.

Rev. O. J. Richel, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, of Point
Marion, was foreman of the jury.

It was just 10:45 o'clock when the jury filed into the court room which they had left exactly seven hours earlier to deliberate on the testimony offered and Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen's charge.

There were but few persons in the court room when Sheriff J. Q. Adams brought Jacob Foltz across the bridge of sighs to listen to his fate. Deputy Clerk of Courts Samuel P. Flenniken called the roll of jurors and asked them if they had agreed on a verdict.
Foreman Richel replied, "We have.
Guilty of voluntary manslaughter."

The prisoner stood erect with his counsel as he had done on the day of arraignment and with upraised hand listened to his verdict unflinchingly.
Following the words of the jury, he sat down and conferred with counsel for a few minutes before returning to the jail in charge of a deputy sheriff.

The entire proceeding was colorless.
Mrs. Hazel Foltz, wife of the prisoner, had left the court room an hour earlier for her home in Dunbar after being informed by friends that a verdict would not likely be returned before morning.

Mrs. Helen Younklin, widow of the man who was slain by Foltz, had left for her home in Connellsville on an early evening car. Court was in session but seven minutes when an adjournment was taken until Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

When court opened Wednesday morning, Attorney W. C. McKean, of counsel for the defense, in a masterful merchandise displayed at its spring

been put forth in selecting the lines of wearing apparel worthy to be worn by the store's clientele. Only such quality merchandise that will give the satisfactory wear and service that both the firm and its customers de-season's selling.

Next to quality, style is the most important factor in all new merchanmen's and boys' clothing the firm takes especial pride in its display. The new loose fitting English coats with the accompanying loose fitting trus-

Beginning after the noon recess, Assistant District Attorney Alfred E. Jones started his discourse, at 1:15 and represented the Commonwealth with a firm determination to bring the guilty to justice. His address was of the highest order and he was at his best in his address, occupying an hour and a half. It took Judge J. Q. Foltz Trial to Convene Today

One of the Most Sensational Murder Cases in County's History.

"UNWRITTEN LAW"

Expected to be Defense. Hard Fought Legal Battle Seen.

One of the most sensational murder trials in the history of Fayette county, will be called when court convenes this morning and the selection of a jury is begun to try Jacob K. Foltz, of Danbar, charged with the murder of Benjamin Rosenthal, Yonah. The "unwritten law," it is said, will be Foltz' defense. The murder, it is charged, grew out of Yonah's intimacy with the defendant's wife who is expected to take the witness stand during the trial of the case and recite the events which lead up to the killing of Yonah, a well known married man of Connelville, by the defendant following discovery of a note written by Mrs. Foltz to Yonah.

One of the hardest fought legal battles in the county's criminal history is expected in connection with the case. It is predicted that the selection of the jury itself will require several days and there is a possibility that special verdicts will be necessary before the panel of 12 is secured to decide the fate of the young Foltz. Defense attorneys are W. Cook, McKean, John Duffan, Jr., and R. M. Carroll. The prosecution will be directed by the county attorney.

Jansen Took Out Insurance Policy for Wife Recently.

TWICE MARRIED

By Associated Press.

DENVER, Mar. 16.

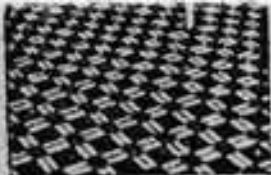

Fred Jansen, sought for questioning after the finding yesterday of the body of a woman in a trunk at Ogden, Utah, took out a $1,000 insurance policy on the life of his wife and himself about one month ago, Saul Ehrlich, president of the Great Western Finance Company, announced here today.

In her application, Mrs. Jansen, whose description tallies with that of the woman found at Ogden, gave her maiden name as Isabella Stodner and said she was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., July 13, 1886. According to newspaper dispatches from Pittsburgh, Jansen's foster mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Glanzer, lives in that city. Mrs. Jansen was reported to be the missing man's second wife, married in Pittsburgh in 1909.

Alzheimer clues confound researchers

By Delthia Ricks
Orlando Sentinel

Every so often in a disease as complicated as Alzheimer's, there come hints of things so confounding that even the researchers producing the clues are astonished by what they've found.

Could it be that some people are naturally protected against the incurable brain disorder while others acquire protection from something as simple as aspirin?

Some lifelong smokers who have maintained the habit into old age (and remain fortunate enough not to die of lung cancer), have surprisingly low rates of Alzheimer's disease, scientists say. The low incidence rates also appear to be true for people who take particularly high doses of aspirin and related medications.

Dr. Jack Riggs of the Department of Neurology at the West Virginia Health Sciences Center suggests that it's probably not anything in cigarettes that's saving some old smokers, but a way in which their genes respond to assaults that renders them "immune" to the disease.

In a recent issue of the British medical journal The Lancet, Riggs said such smokers apparently have superior DNA-repair mechanisms. When their genetic material is damaged by the myriad chemicals in cigarettes, their bodies effectively mend the breaks.

By logical extension, other types of DNA damage, such as that caused by Alzheimer's disease, probably also undergo a quick repair, Riggs and his team say.

But what is it about the class of drugs known as anti-inflammatory agents, which includes aspirin, that seems to have a protective effect against the degenerative disorder?

"No one really knows," Dr. Steven Younkin, a professor of neuroscience at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, said. Mostly anecdotal evidence, Younkin said, links low rates of Alzheimer's to higher-than-usual aspirin intake.

Studies Find Likely Source in the Brain For Substance Linked to Alzheimer's

By DAVID STRIPP

Staff Reporter of THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

In studies that should help unravel how Alzheimer's disease develops, scientists have located a probable source within brain cells of a substance thought to trigger the disease.

The finding clarifies a major mystery about how the protein fragment, called beta amyloid, is formed. It also suggests a particular place in brain cells on which to focus efforts to develop medicines to arrest the metabolic malfunction underlying the disease. An estimated four million Americans are afflicted with Alzheimer's disease, which causes memory loss and other mental deterioration.

Beta amyloid forms clumps that litter the brains of people with Alzheimer's disease, and many researchers now believe that it's the central culprit in the disease. But what causes beta amyloid deposits to form?

Researchers previously have shed light on that question in studies on the so-called amyloid precursor protein, or APP. Formed normally in brain cells, APP contains beta amyloid as a subsection. Scientists believe beta amyloid is unleashed when certain scissor-like substances, called proteases, cut APP in just the right way to release the beta amyloid fragment. But how that could happen has been unclear—the only protease known to cut APP snips it in the middle of the beta amyloid section, and thus isn't thought to form beta amyloid-containing fragments that could trigger the disease.

The latest studies, led by Steven G. Younkin at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, suggest that a second protein breakdown process within cells can cut APP in a way that releases beta amyloid. In one set of experiments, the researchers analyzed subparts of APP formed in brain cells and found pieces containing the entire beta amyloid section.

In other experiments, the researchers found evidence that the beta amyloid-containing fragments are formed in lysosomes—small sacks within cells long known to be places where unneeded or faulty proteins are shredded. The studies, reported in today's issue of the journal Science, suggest that by focusing on the protein-breakdown processes in lysosomes, scientists may be able find out how the disease starts. Once that's known, "there might be a lot of ways to intervene" to prevent the untoward cutting of APP, said Dr. Younkin.

Some scientists, however, aren't convinced lysosome breakdown of APP holds the key to the Alzheimer's mystery. The studies by Dr. Younkin's team "are good research," said Dmitry Goldgaber, an amyloid expert at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. "But they don't exclude other pathways to generate" beta amyloid. Moreover, recent advances on the amyloid front haven't been reconciled with research on other aspects of Alzheimer's disease, such as studies suggesting there are abnormally high levels of aluminum in the brains of people with the disorder.

In any case, researchers led by Charles Glabe at the University of California at Irvine recently have found evidence that beta amyloid fragments stick together in aggregates that resist breakdown in lysosomes. Like rocks lobbed into a paper shredder, these aggregates may eventually cause cumulative damage to cells that kill them, releasing pent up beta amyloid to form the telltale brain clumps of the disease. Thus, another way to arrest the disease may be to develop drugs that interfere with the aggregation of amyloid fragments after they're formed, said Dr. Glabe.

Boring in on β -Amyloid's Role in Alzheimer's

New studies of how the protein β -amyloid is made in cells may help in understanding Alzheimer's brain degeneration

THE U.S. ECONOMY ISN'T THE ONLY THING that goes through boom and bust cycles. Consider what's been happening to the decade-long effort of neurobiologists to prove that the small protein called β -amyloid helps cause Alzheimer's disease. A few years ago, the failure of genetic studies to find a link between the protein's gene and hereditary forms of the disease sent the stock of the "amyloid hypothesis" plummeting. Within the past year, however, in a stunning reversal, further studies have shown that there is indeed a link between the amyloid gene and Alzheimer's—touching off a new bullish phase of β -amyloid research.

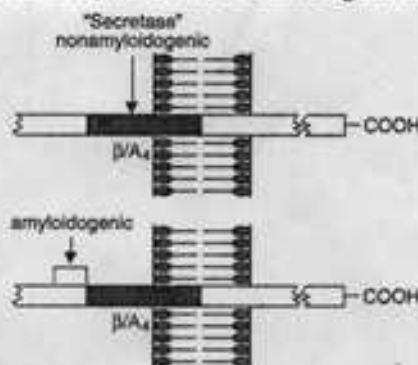

But while that work is removing the doubts about the protein's importance, it still has not provided answers to many vexing questions, including one that has long been a thorn in the side of β -amyloid proponents: what actually causes the buildup of β -amyloid deposits in the brains of Alzheimer's patients? Now, several research teams are beginning to answer that question—and the results are surprising.

The expectation had been that β -amyloid would be produced by some aberrant reaction related to the disease. But the picture now emerging suggests that it's formed even in healthy cells by the cell's normal protein-degrading machinery. "This is a big change from what we thought before," says Steven Younkin of Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine in Cleveland, who leads one of the research teams. Although researchers still don't know what causes more β -amyloid deposits to form in the brains of Alzheimer's patients than in those of unaffected people, finding the pathways that make the protein means they can begin a systematic exploration of how β -amyloid production is controlled. And that work might at long last lead to the identification of the genetic and other factors that contribute to Alzheimer's development.

If those factors could be pinned down, it would open the door to improved Alzheimer's therapy—even prevention. "If there's some way that modulation of one or more of the pathways [for making β -amyloid] can slow down neurodegeneration, then we would really have progress," says Alzheimer's expert Carl Banner of the National Institute on Aging, who organized a recent conference dealing with β -amyloid formation.* Since most people develop the disease late in life, usually after age 65, delaying the onset of symptoms by 10 years would be almost as good as a cure, Banner explains.

The original reason for thinking that β -amyloid might be involved in Alzheimer's was its location. The patients' brains contain large numbers of abnormal structures called "senile plaques," which consist of a protein core surrounded by degenerating nerve terminals. In 1984 George Glenner and C. W. Wong of the University of California, San Diego, found that the plaque cores are made of β -amyloid. Neurobiologists have been of two minds about that protein's role ever since, however. Some have argued that the deposition of the protein actually causes the neuronal degeneration of Alzheimer's. Their opponents think that view has it backwards—that the deposition is merely the result of nerve cell breakdown.

The "amyloid as cause" faction got a big boost in 1987 after the gene encoding β -amyloid was cloned and mapped to chromosome 21. That was encouraging because people with Down's syndrome, who have an extra copy of chromosome 21, develop an Alzheimer's-like dementia in their twenties and thirties. That suggested that excess β -amyloid production causes the neuronal degeneration underlying their dementia. But even though the amyloid gene may play a role in this form of Alzheimer's, researchers had trouble connecting it to other forms. Especially disappointing was the inability to find a linkage between the amyloid gene and hereditary Alzheimer's, which strikes people in their forties and fifties and is not as common as the late-onset disease.

But it turns out there was a simple explanation for the failure. Traditional genetic linkage studies don't work if two or more different genes can cause what appears clinically to be the same disease. And that turned out to be the case in hereditary Alzheimer's. So there was still a chance that a β -amyloid defect caused the disease in some Alzheimer's families and could be found by looking for amyloid gene mutations within individual families. Then, about a year ago, lightning struck.

A large team of researchers led by neurogeneticist John Hardy of St. Mary's Hospital Medical School in London reported in Nature (21 February 1991) that they had discovered a mutation in the amyloid protein gene that is associated with the disease in two families with hereditary Alzheimer's (also see Science, 22 February 1991, p. 876). Since then, additional Alzheimer's families with a mutation in the same site have been found by Hardy's group and others, although the mutation is very rare. Identification of the "Hardy mutation" showed "that aberrations in the amyloid precursor protein are sufficient, if not necessary, for Alzheimer's. That put the focus on the protein's metabolism more squarely than it was a year ago," Banner says.

In particular, researchers want to find out how β -amyloid is made in cells, an issue that has been problematical for the protein's supporters. The β -amyloid protein, which contains just 42 amino acids, is made as part of a much larger protein, called the amyloid precursor protein (APP). Full-length APP apparently does not harm cells, and is in fact thought to have a normal function that has yet to be identified. It's only when β -amyloid is clipped out of APP by protein-splitting enzymes that problems may start. But clipping out β -amyloid is not so easy, because APP is apparently embedded in the cell membrane with about two-thirds of the β -amyloid segment on the cell exterior and the rest buried in the membrane where it's inaccessible to protein-splitting enzymes, unless the membrane is somehow damaged.

What's more, about 2 years ago, Sam Sisodia of Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and his colleagues found that the outer APP segment is normally clipped from the membrane and then secreted. Shortly thereafter, a team led by Fred Esch of Athena Neurosciences, Inc. in San Francisco, showed that it occurs either at amino acid 15 or 16 in the β -amyloid segment. Any APP molecule that undergoes this normal "secretase" reaction would thus be unable to produce β -amyloid. Those results left the amyloid faction with a problem: How could APP processing possibly lead to β -amyloid deposition?

*The symposium, "Proteases and Protease Inhibitors: Emerging Roles in the Pathogenesis of Alzheimer's Disease," was held at the National Institutes of Health from 16 to 18 December 1991.

COURTESY OF DR. GEORGE PERRY, DEPT. OF PATHOLOGY, CASE WESTERN RESERVE UNIVERSITY

And that's where the new work comes in, starting with two papers in this issue from Younkin and his colleagues (see pages 726 and 728). What the Case Western group and others are now finding is that cells have alternative ways of breaking down APP—and that these routes, unlike the secretase reaction, yield fragments that contain intact β -amyloid and thus have the potential of forming Alzheimer's plaques. Younkin and his colleagues have demonstrated the presence of such "amyloidogenic" fragments in normal human cells, including brain cells. What's more, they show that the fragments are almost certainly formed in the small vesicles known as lysosomes. They find, for example, that compounds that inhibit lysosomal enzymes inhibit the fragment formation.

Researchers already had reason to suspect that APP breakdown might occur in the lysosomes as well as by the secretase reaction. Known to be a site of normal protein breakdown, they are loaded with enzymes "capable of cleaving just about every bond in a normal protein," says Ralph Nixon of Harvard Medical School and McLean Hospital in Belmont, Massachusetts. In fact, other investigators had previously detected APP fragments in lysosomes, but the Younkin group is the first to show directly that the fragments contain intact β -amyloid. "I think these are very strong experiments," says Sisodia. He describes the results as "the best evidence yet" that cells make APP fragments that could lead to the formation of β -amyloid molecules—and therefore that some defect in the processing of amyloid could lead to the plaque formation that characterizes Alzheimer's brains.

Several other researchers also have evidence, much still unpublished, that APP is broken down in the lysosomes to form amyloidogenic fragments. These include Gregory Cole of the University of California, San Diego, who was among those who detected APP fragments in lysosomes in the earlier experiments; Sam Gandy, who works with Paul Greengard at Rockefeller University in New York City; Dennis Selkoe of Harvard Medical School, who is a collaborator on one of the current Younkin papers but is also pursuing the work independently; and Sisodia.

But showing that there's more than one way to cleave APP is only a first step toward a better understanding of amyloid deposition in Alzheimer's, especially since it now seems that amyloidogenic fragments can form during normal APP degradation. As Gandy puts it: "If everyone has these alternatively cleaved molecules, why do some people get amyloid deposits early and some late? I hate to say it's going to be complicated because that's pretty self-evident."

Presumably, something shifts the balance away from APP cleavage through the secretase pathway, which should work against amyloid deposition, toward the lysosomal pathway, which may favor it. Selkoe and his postdoc Christian Haass have shown, for example, that APP, which is on the membrane, can be taken into the lysosomes. So if membrane APP is not cut by the secretase then there is a route for getting it back into the lysosomes.

Of course, the identity of the "something" that shifts the balance between the two degradation pathways remains a big question mark. As Gandy suggested, there are numerous possibilities. One is that some inherent defect in APP—such as the one caused by the Hardy mutation—alters its processing. Indeed, researchers, including Bruce Yankner of Children's Hospital in Boston, have preliminary evidence that the mutant APP may produce more amyloidogenic fragments than the normal protein. "The mutations are important because they give you a handle on the disease," Yankner says.

But the genetic studies have already shown that APP mutations can account for only a small number of Alzheimer's cases, so researchers are going to have to look for additional changes that may lead to amyloid deposition. Other possibilities include a problem with the secretase itself—causing it to become less active or to be produced in smaller amounts as a person ages. Alternatively, the defect could be in reactions that control the action of the secretase. Gandy, Greengard, and their colleagues and also the Younkin group have shown, for example, that the secretase reaction is increased by treatments that stimulate protein phosphorylation. And then the problem might be not with the secretase, but with lysosomal abnormalities that enhance β -amyloid formation.

But no matter how the β -amyloid forms, it looks as if the cell has a tough time getting rid of it. Charles Glabe and his colleagues at the University of California, Irvine, find that the protein forms aggregates inside the lysosomes. "It turns out that β -amyloid is resistant to degradation when it's inside cells," Glabe says, although that raises still another question: How does it get out of the lysosome? As Cole points out: "All the pieces are there, but someone now has to go in and show that you can get amyloid deposition through the lysosomal pathway." One possibility is that it's secreted. Alternatively, an abnormal accumulation of β -amyloid in the lysosomes might lead to cell damage, or even death, with the subsequent release of the lysosomal contents.

Despite the surging interest in the lysosomal pathway as a potential source of the amyloid deposits of Alzheimer's, it's only fair to say that not all the amyloid skeptics have come around. Take for example, Harvard's Nixon. He thinks that the lysosomes are involved all right. Indeed, research by his group shows that amyloid plaques contain lysosomal enzymes, as well as β -amyloid. But he still argues that release of the lysosomes and amyloid formation is the result of nerve cell injury—rather than the other way around. Even the Hardy mutation is consistent with this idea, he says, since it changes an amino acid within the membrane-spanning segment of APP, and that might open the way to membrane damage.

In spite of this kind of skepticism, the market for the amyloid hypothesis was anything but bearish in 1991. The scientific analogue of the Dow-Jones index is Science Watch, a publication that tracks research trends by counting the citations papers receive. The last issue of that publication anointed APP research last year's "hottest" field, largely because the Hardy paper got the most citations in biology. Science-watchers should keep their eye on the ticker for the latest amyloid results, because 1992 figures to be even hotter. ■ JEAN MARX

Immunity fight in murder trial

By C.M. MORTIMER
H-S Staff Writer

A surprise Commonwealth witness called to testify in the trial of Joseph P. Franksberry and Elmer Wayne Younkin claimed protection under the Fifth Amendment in Fayette County court Friday afternoon — a move that prompted District Attorney Gerald R. Solomon to petition the court to grant him total immunity for his involvement in the slaying of John R. "Sonny" Tomasek — which presiding Judge Conrad B. Capizzi subsequently denied.

Franksberry, 34, of Scotland and Younkin, 30, of Conestoga, Pa., are charged with criminal homicide and conspiracy in the alleged contract slaying of Tomasek which occurred on Nov. 14 of last year.

With the jury absent, Ben Wujz of Scotland was called by the prosecution to the witness stand and when questioned as to whether or not he knew either of the defendants sought protection under the Fifth Amendment, which states that no person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself.

At that point, Solomon addressed the court and informed it to grant the witness total immunity in the Tomasek slaying, contending that "it would be in the public's best interest" to hear his testimony in reference to the slaying.

However, attorney E. David Margolis, serving as Younkin's legal counsel, objected to the Commonwealth's petition in that it was "manifestly" against the best interests of the public, and that it was "improper" for the district attorney to "cast immunity around like it was popcorn."

Attorney Vincent J. Rozkowsky II, serving as Franksberry's defense counsel, concurred with Margolis and noted that the "district attorney is overstepping his bounds."

Arguing his position, Solomon told that court that Wujz gave statements to both federal and state law enforcement officials, and that his testimony would involve a conversation he had with Elmer Wayne Younkin.

At that point, presiding Judge Capizzi then stepped off the bench, summoned the attorney's involved into his private chambers for discussion, and emerged about a half hour later with his ruling which denied immunity for Wujz.

Most of the trial proceedings involved defense counsel's cross-examination of Charles R. Huey, 21, of York, Pa., Commonwealth's key witness who admitted he was the "driver" of the car which was used in the slaying, and that Joseph Franksberry was the trigger man in the slaying.

Testimony brought out several facets of an incident which, on the surface, appeared to be a cut and dry case. Upon cross-examination, Huey testified that Ben Wujz was originally offered the Tomasek contract, but that he declined because, according to Huey, he was a friend of Elmer Younkin.

Agent Dan Hareldson, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said that Huey told him in February of this year Wujz passed on the contract because he was too "busy" at that time.

Huey related that he was involved in a conversation last year with two other men, John Sullivan and "Lib" DeHana, which involved the killing of Joseph Franksberry.

Huey said that the conversation was part of a discussion involving a silver sale, and that "Lib" was "upset." "I stopped the conversation, I felt there was no need to kill Joseph Franksberry," said Huey. The unsuspected Franksberry, clad in and wearing a white shirt, sat motionless through proceedings, as did co-defendant Younkin.

However, when questioned by Solomon in federal law enforcement officials in February, Huey replied, "After conversations with Franksberry, I felt my life and my wife's were in danger. I considered moving to Delaware, but I wouldn't do any good."

In their cross examination, defense counsel attempted to convince the jury of seven free men that Huey's cooperation with the multiracial out of fear of prosecution for a rather than fear of his brother-in-law Frank out of horror for the victim.

"You feel remorseful, don't you?" questioned "I don't believe a man should be killed in a trial," replied Huey.

Testimony in the trial, which has elapsed past two weeks, is expected to resume Tuesday.

Informant testifies in slay case

By C.M. MORTIMER

Testifying as a federal informant under a grant of total immunity, Charles Ralph Huey again detailed the events leading up to and including the actual killing of John K. "Sonny" Tomasek, before a crowded courtroom in Fayette County court yesterday.

Charged in the slaying, which occurred on Nov. 14 of last year, are Joseph P. Frankenberg, 34, of Scottsdale and Elmer Wayne Younklin, 50, of Conellville R.D.1.

Testimony in the trial, which is being heard before Judge Conrad B. Capuzzi, was delayed about an hour and 30 minutes yesterday morning due to a closed hearing regarding Huey's testimony with the jury, spectators and the news media excluded.

However, once on the witness stand, Huey proceeded to tell the jury of seven women and five men that he was the driver of the car used on the night of the slaying and that Joseph Frankenberg was the trigger-man in the slaying.

He said that he was given the information about Tomasek's whereabouts from Frankenberg, who said that he received the information from Elmer Younklin who in turn received it from Phoebe Tomasek, the widow of the deceased.

"There was no better source of information," said Huey.

He said he had "cased" Tomasek's Menallen Township home on several occasions, and that on several prior dates he and Frankenberg had planned to kill John Tomasek.

On the night of the killing, Huey testified that after they followed the victim home he got out of the car and asked Tomasek, who was still sitting in the cab of his truck, if he knew the address of a person in the community.

Walking back to his car, he testified that Frankenberg said "this is it" and then proceeded to get out of the car, walk up to Tomasek, and empty a .40 caliber handgun into the victim.

"I saw Archie (Tomasek) jump. He was yelling and screaming. Joe just stood there and shot him," said Huey.

He also testified that he called Frankenberg when he got home, and that Frankenberg told him he had talked to Elmer Younklin who told him that Tomasek had not died. The victim, shot on a Friday night, died the following Sunday afternoon in Morgantown Hospital.

In reference to the telephone conversation, Huey told the jury that Frankenberg said "if he doesn't die right away he (Frankenberg) would have to go to the hospital after him."

Huey said he received several small payments, totaling about $5,000, from Nov. 14 until Jan. 13, the day of the final payoff which occurred in the parking lot of a bar located on Fayette Street.

He said he received a "couple hundred dollars" prior to the killing, and that the original fee was $15,000 but was later upped to about $20,000 for expenses that had been incurred.

He said that the insurance check was made out to and endorsed by Phoebe Tomasek, which he deposited the next day in his private business account, but that the check was actually turned over to them by Elmer Younklin.

Upon cross-examination by attorney Vincent J. Rookoverusky II, serving as Frankenberg's legal counsel, Huey admitted that he had already lied to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, whom he went to in February of this year, the state police and to his brother.

During his cross-examination, Rookoverusky attempted to question the consistency of prior statements Huey had given to law enforcement officials earlier as compared to his testimony in the mid-1980s.

Slay trial begins here

By C.M. MORTIMER, H.S. Staff Writer

Jury selection began yesterday afternoon in the trial of Joseph P. Frankberry, 34, of Scottsdale and Elmer Wayne Younklin, 30, of Councilville R.D.1, both of whom are charged with criminal homicide and conspiracy in the slaying of John K. "Sonny" Tomasek on Nov. 14 of last year.

A number of pre-trial motions filed by counsel for both defendants were ruled on by the court yesterday morning, including one which consolidates the cases and allows them to be tried at the same time.

Attorney E. David Margolis is serving as Youkin's defense counsel, while attorney Vincent J. Frolovensky II will serve in the same capacity for Frankberry.

District Attorney Gerald H. Solomon will prosecute the case for the Commonwealth, which will be heard before Judge Conrad B. Caputo.

The court also ruled on several other pre-trial motions, which were filed separately by defense counsel before President Judge Richard D. Cicchetti and Judge William J. Franks.

Both pullings were essentially similar, and denuded:

- Motions for dismissal of charges filed against the defendants.
- Motions for a change of venue.
- Motions for a severance of the cases.

- Motions for the superannuation of statements

- Key Commonwealth witness.

No ruling was made on a motion to suppress certain tapes confiscated earlier by law enforcement officials, in light of the fact that the Commonwealth agreed not to make use of them.

A major point of contention raised by defense counsel centered around the fact that the trial of their clients "came on the heels" of a first-degree murder conviction about 19 days ago of another co-conspirator in the case, Phoebe Louise Tomasek, 47, who was sentenced to life imprisonment as a result of the jury's verdict.

"In a rural county, it's unrealistic to believe people have not heard about the case. In light of the publicity, I don't see how it can be anything but prejudicial to my client," noted Margolis.

However, in ruling on the motions for a change of venue, the court was of another opinion.

In denying Younklin's request for a change of venue, Judge Franks noted that the defendant "has failed to show that the pre-trial publicity was so pervasive and inflammatory as to deny the defendant a fair and impartial trial."

Touching on a similar point raised by Frankenberg, Judge Cicchetti wrote, "The court asked if there was a motion to continue this matter to a later date, which was answered by defense counsel in the negative."

He added, "The only evidence submitted by the defense are newspaper coverage of the prior trial. The coverage cannot be considered as anything but a factual recital of the testimony that was presented at trial."

The court noted that use of mere questioning as prospective jurors' excuse eliminates the problem of possible prejudice, but left the door open for another venue request if need be.

Tomaszek appeals verdict, seeks new trial

By C.M. MORTIMER

H-S Staff Writer

Convicted murderess Phoebe Louise Tomasek has filed an appeal with the court here asking either that the verdict be overturned or that she be granted a new trial.

Mrs. Tomasek, 47, was convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment a little over a week ago for the contract slaying of her husband, John K. "Sonny" Tomasek on Nov. 14 of last year.

In a nine-page appeal, attorney Peter U. Hook, who served as Mrs. Tomasek's defense counsel, contended that the verdict was against the evidence, against the weight of the evidence and against the law.

He contended that the court erred in denying her motion to suppress statements which she had given to law enforcement officials, which he said considering the totality of the circumstances, "were not voluntarily, knowingly and understandingly made."

Hook also contended that the court erred in entering an order which simply denied her motion to suppress her statements without setting forth a statement of findings of fact and conclusions of law as required by the Pennsylvania Rules of Criminal Procedure — thereby preventing the defendant from making specific objections to the court's denial of the motion to suppress the statements in question.

Defense counsel also felt the court erred by denying motions to dismiss the case, in that the Commonwealth did not present sufficient evidence at the preliminary hearing to establish a case against her and that under the affidavit for the arrest warrant there was not probable cause to arrest her.

Hook also contended that information obtained from Charles Ralph Huey, who testified as a key Commonwealth witness and precipitated Mrs. Tomasek's arrest, was "procured through an illegal and unlawful arrangement" between Huey and the Commonwealth whereby Huey was either "implicitly or impliedly" granted immunity from prosecution in connection with the killing without compliance with the proper procedures for the granting of immunity.

Additionally, defense counsel felt the court erred in "abusing its discretion" in denying Mrs. Tomasek's request to have the jury sequestered throughout the course of the trial when it was known that "because of the nature of the charges, considerable news media coverage would result, and in fact did result, which was particularly prejudicial to the defendant."

Other points cited in the appeal included:

— The court erred in overruling the defendant's objection to the grant of immunity to the alleged co-conspirator Charles Ralph Huey.

— Huey's testimony should never have been admitted in view of the fact that he never talked with the defendant directly, concluding that his testimony with reference to Mrs. Tomasek "was the result of alleged double and triple hearsay statements."

— The court erred in failing to dismiss charges against Mrs. Tomasek on the basis of prosecutorial misconduct in "intentionally and deliberately withholding various tape recordings."

— In line with this, defense counsel contended that the court erred in disqualifying the district attorney's office because of "obvious bias toward the defendant by the withholding of evidence, preventing the defendant from obtaining a fair trial as is constitutionally guaranteed."

In the appeal, Hook also stated that he had been informed that certain jurors during the trial were heard to discuss the case on Main Street in Uniontown during a recess, and that another juror allegedly discussed the proceedings with a person who was not a member of the jury, all to the prejudice of the defendant.

In conclusion, the appeal noted "the totality of the circumstances during the trial caused the defendant to be prejudiced and denied her the right to a fair trial as guaranteed by the Constitutions of Pennsylvania and the United States."

Informant's character questioned her

By C.M. MORTIMER, H-S Staff Writer
The trial of the two men charged in the contract slaying of John K. "Sonny" Tomasek on Nov. 14 of last year continued in Fayette County court yesterday, however, most of the attention centered around the character and prosecutorial handling of Charles R. Huey, who is the key Commonwealth witness in the case and testifying under a grant of total immunity.

Joseph P. Franklenberry, 32, of Scottsdale and Elmer Wayne Younklin, 30, of Connelleville R.D.1 are charged with criminal homicide and conspiracy in the slaying.

Montgomery Goodwin, of the state police and prosecuting officer in the case, testified that at a meeting on Feb. 11 of this year Huey told him that he participated in the Tomasek slaying, and also told him the details surrounding it.

ed, Goodwin replied, "He was in federal protective custody. I felt that if I wanted to file charges against him I could do so at a later date."

involved in a crime you are more interested in sailing down his participation? Is Mr. Huey the kind of person you want to take off the street?" questioned Margolis.

Jail terms given

Five persons received prison terms after appearing for sentencing before President Judge Richard D. Cocchietti in Fayette County court yesterday.

Receiving jail terms were Mark Bell, 19, of Dunbar, 11½ to 23 months on charges of theft, forgery and burglary; Thomas Huey, 27, of Dunbar, 11½ to 23 months on a burglary charge; and Frank Loran, 22, of Perryopolis, who was given 1½ to 5 years on a charge of robbery.

Also sentenced were Bradley Cupp, 31, of Uniontown, 3½ to 5 years on a charge of robbery; and Joseph S. Markiewicz, 32, of Belle Vernon, who was given 1½ to 23 months in prison on a burglary charge.

Miner deaths show increase

Despite the 73-day-long strike by the United Mine Workers, more American coal miners died on the job in the first six months of 1961 than during the same period last year, according to the union.

A story in the August edition of the United Mine Workers Journal states that 63 miners were killed between January and June, compared to 58 killed during the first six months of 1960. Forty-one percent of those killed in the first half of 1961 were UMW members, the article said.

Colorado led the nation with 17 mining deaths in the first six months of 1961, followed by Kentucky (14) and West Virginia (nine).

The leading cause of death varied in the 1960 and 1961 periods. Explosions, killing 18 miners, accounted for the most deaths this year. Haulage accidents accounted for the most deaths last year, killing 31.

In April, 15 non-union miners were killed when an explosion rocked a mine at Redstone, Colo. The disaster increased Colorado's coal mine death toll to 17. Through the first six months of 1960, Colorado had had only one coal mine fatality.

West Virginia, the nation's second-ranked coal producing state, led the nation with 15 mining fatalities last year.

alter Mears unches ill tax education

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberal critics have been denouncing the short-lived business lunch since the when the restaurant tabs run to $15. They want to call it the marital. Now they say it's three marital and fancy wine.

After the marital quota, it is the next, the efforts of would-be reformers notwithstanding. Sen. J. M. Kennedy sponsored the attempt to cut the lunch deduction like those who had tried before, where.

An amendment to President Nixon's tax bill was little more than an effort to keep the subject alive.

It, 57-11.

Believe I have heard this argument before," said Kansas Republican Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, who didn't even try to speak against the Kennedy amendment.

It bears the argument again, probably the next campaign. The effort to cut business deductions for entertainment has been a fixture since John Kennedy was president.

My Carrier pushed the issue from the House, too, but with no more success.

The three-marital lunch is still a viable tax deduction, still a symbol of luxury for Democrats who argue for system subsidies privilege. They are not talking only about the marital lunch. Kennedy told the Senate when it was considering the tax bill that it was the same as the marital steak and the bearish and the fancy wine.

They said the business meals deduction costs more than $3 billion a year in tax revenues and proposed that cut in half, the same change wanted to make.

Massachusetts senator called the entertainment deduction "nothing but food stamps for the rich." He said the business meals deduction half will ensure that the sacrifice

Justice has been turned out to the conspirators involved in the slaying of John R. "Sonny" Tomasek, along with several other individuals related to the slaying in one way or another.

Convicted of first degree murder here in the slaying were the victim's widow, Phoebe Louise Tomasek, 47; Elmer Wayne Youkin, 50 and Joseph P. Frankenberg, 37, all of whom were sentenced to spend the rest of their lives in prison.

The convictions now raise the total to eight individuals whom the Fayette County District Attorney's office has successfully prosecuted and convicted of first degree murder since the new year began.

Along with his life sentence, Frankenberg, who was convicted of being the trigger man in the Tomasek killing, is also facing approximately 40 additional years of incarceration stemming from a string of federal convictions.

According to the U.S. Attorney's office in Harrisburg, Frankenberg has already been convicted of five counts of mail fraud carrying a maximum sentence of five years in prison on each count.

He also was convicted of interstate transportation of stolen goods, stemming from a metals theft involving Temple Enterprises in the Philadelphia area, a conviction which carries a maximum sentence of five years imprisonment.

Additionally, Frankenberg was also convicted in U.S. District court of three firearms violations, including a convicted felon carrying a weapon and possession of a firearm, each carrying a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison.

Charles R. Huey, 31, whose testimony was crucial in the convictions relating to the Tomasek slaying, was given a five-year probationary sentence on

Anchor House

By C.M. MORTIMER

B-S Staff Writer
Unless legal reasons can be found against its proposed use, it appears that Anchor House, a planned home for troubled youths, will be established in Conestoga.

Arguments for and against its proposed use were heard in Fayette County court yesterday before Judge Fred C. Adams, who indicated that he would make a ruling by Thursday.

However, after hearing the issues presented at the proceedings, Judge Adams said that he saw the issue as a "narrow" one, and felt that there were no legal arguments against the proposed use.

Supporters of Anchor House, which would house two to eight youths, aged 13 to 17 and deemed status offenders by the courts, appealed a July 28 decision of the Conestoga Zoning Hearing Board.

Their decision agreed to revoke a building permit issued 17 days earlier by the city planning commission for the home at 501 S. Pittsburgh St.

Attorney Ralph C. Warman, representing Anchor House, contended that the decision was not based on zoning ordinance and Anchor House was not an exception to the residential zone.

Residents protested to the zoning hearing, claiming Anchor House would decrease values.

Neighborhood citizens, however, were also concerned that the property would cause trouble.

Yesterday, attorney 1 advised that the property is a group home facility and commercial zone.

He said that its prior residential use, and "not changing."

"The area is zoned for this use is a permitted use," he said, who also cited the support of his position.

"This is an issue which public outcry because it is a matter. These are not the same as being brought into the area. There is no way from coming into the area."

Honorary Hollywood mayor Johnny Grant bestows a Walk of Fame plaque on Mike Zeln, right, as Gemma Albora watches.

Hollywood Says Hooray for Seven Honorees Whose Longevity Totals 713 Years

They were swooned over like stars. They were smothered with kisses, roses and gifts. And, sharing a combined 713 years of life, they were saluted for their longevity. Seven centenarians—all born before the invention of the Model T, airplanes or television—were honored at a weekend luncheon at the Hollywood Palace sponsored by the American Centenarian Committee, a group that befriends the aged.

With the aid of walkers, canes and escorts, they strolled along the Hollywood Walk of Fame before receiving their own replica of the stars from Johnny Grant, honorary mayor of Hollywood, and Carmen Gongliu, a chamber member.

"Hollywood is known for its stars, but each one of them would trade their star for your longevity. You are true stars," Grant told the honorees at the party dedicated to group founder, Raphael Cordero, who died last year of complications from AIDS.

Maximina Ramirez, 100, was so moved that she spontaneously sang and prayed the rosary for several minutes after taking her place on the Palace stage. Throughout the program, the native of Guanajuato, Mexico, who became a naturalized citizen five years ago, expressed her unbridled appreciation.

"Gracias a Dios y a ustedes. Estoy muy feliz hoy," sang out Ramirez, her hands clasped as she gave thanks.

Said Grant, "Maximina has finally had her chance to play the Palace."

So did Gemma Albora, 103; Minnie Bayleson, 101; Dwight Chensault, 103; Elma Corning, 101; Florence Younkin, 103, and Mike Zeln, 104—all sharing their secrets to a long life.

"Don't smoke. Don't drink. And most important of all, be honest," said Albora.

Said Zeln, "I like to eat and I like women. They both want to make me live for the next day."

Dear Donna:

Thanks so much for your letter and enclosures of 18 Sept. 1992. The Family Group Record (from Josiah G. Youngken, born 1827) and Descendants Chart are great to have.

Now about my father's (HWY Sr.) files: Actually all I have besides some early family photos and pertinent to your research are two original baptismal certificates (Josiah 1827 and Charles Eugene 1857), a lengthy hand written summary by a J.G. Pentz, written for my father in about 1922 about the search for original Younkin coal/oil land in Pa., a copy of the Younkin Family News Bulletin Vol 1.No1. 1937 and less pertinent odds and ends. My brother Eugene for some reason has still not sent to me the original baptismal certificate of David. He promises to do so soon.

I will send copies of the three certificates to you as soon as I receive the one for David. In the meantime I am enclosing a typing of the eleven page handwritten report to my father from J.G. Pentz of 1922. Also are copies of the early News Bulletin and an interesting letter from a Dr. N. Younkin of 1937. The baptismal certificate for David (1804) is in German. A translation of the first paragraph reads as follows:

" To these two married people Johannes Juncken and his legal wife born Barbara Wimmer a son, David, was born in the year of our Lord Jesus 1804, the 5th day of April at 5 a.m. in the sign of (blank) was christened by Pastor Mensch his christening witnesses were Jacob Funk and his wife Susanna" No place for the birth or christening is mentioned. All other paragraphs (in German) are of religious quotations typical of the time.

Anyway, I will keep on searching and ask my sister and brother to do the same. Just who was the father of the above Johannes Juncken remains a puzzle.

Again thanks very much for your time and efforts. They mean so much to solving the puzzle.

Best regards,

Sincerely

Heber

Younkin wins Maple Ridge Geography Bee

Kyla Younkin, a fifth-grade student at Maple Ridge Elementary School, won the school-level competition of the National Geography Bee on Dec. 21.

Drew Snyder, also a fifth-grader, was runner-up.

The school-level Bee, at which students answered oral questions on geography, was the first round in the sixth annual National Geography Bee.

Thousands of schools around the United States, the District of Columbia and five U.S. territories recently participated in this year's Bee.

The school winners will now take a written test and up to 100 of the top scorers in each state and territory will be eligible to compete in their state Bee April 8.

The National Geographic Society with its co-sponsors will provide an all-expense-paid trip to Washington D.C. for state champions and their teacher escorts to participate in the National Geography Bee on May 24 and 25.

The first-place national winner will receive a $25,000 college scholarship; the second-place winner, a $15,000 scholarship; and the third-place winner, a $10,000 scholarship.

Wanda Tokar of School Days donated the Discover the World with Columbus, an electronic geography machine game, and Herb Berkeley of K-mart donated two landscape puzzles for the Maple Ridge winner.

Emily Engleka makes mark as young fiddler

By SANDRA LEPLEY

GARRETT — Nine-year-old Emily Engleka started playing the fiddle a year ago and she has already placed at four of the five competitions she attended.

She is the daughter of Nathan and Sharon Engleka of Garrett RD 1.

"Emily started out learning how to hold the bow and play a few strokes and now she is playing bluegrass and all types of fiddling music," said her mother.

Hoe down songs like "Old Joe Clark" and "Boil Them Cabbage Down" are just a few of the tunes performed by the fourth-grade Rockwood Elementary School student.

Last year, while Emily was watching country music videos on television, she saw a woman playing the fiddle. "The reason I wanted to start playing was because I saw a girl playing the fiddle on TV and it got me interested," said Emily.

Her desire to take lessons grew and she asked for a fiddle for Christmas.

"When we found out that a lady from Grantsville, Md., gave lessons, we went ahead and bought a fiddle before Christmas," said Sharon.

On Oct. 18 of last year, Emily took her first lesson with 72-year-old Ellinor Benedict of Grantsville, Md., who played professional cello all her life.

"Ellinor never put a fiddle under her chin until six years ago and now she has won all kinds of competitions," Sharon said. Benedict gives fiddle, cello and piano lessons.

"She (Benedict) is really nice and she teaches really good," said Emily.

Benedict's teaching must be good because Emily has attended five competitions and placed in the youth divisions of four.

She won fourth place at the Arts and Heritage Festival in Greensburg on July 4 of this year; a third-place trophy at an annual fiddling and banjo contest at Friendsville, Md., on July 18; a third-place trophy at Westmoreland County Fair, Aug. 30, and second-place at a state banjo and fiddle contest held during the Autumn Glory Festival, Oakland, Md., Oct. 10.

She received a ribbon of participation for the Pennsylvania state competition at Fayette County Fairgrounds, Oct. 17.

Over Labor Day, Emily played at Berlin Bluegrass Festival and she has performed for the third-grade class at Rockwood Elementary. She is also a member of the Old-time Fiddlers Association.

Emily plans to continue taking lessons, attend more fiddle competitions and eventually pursue a career in country-western or bluegrass music.

"My goal is to go to Nashville, Tenn., and go to the Grand Old Opry and play background music for a singing group," she said.

a.m., daily. He said on Friday morning the gauge was up to 10 inches and then on Saturday it was at the 28-inch mark.

Melard, the snow measured 2.19 inches of precipitation, Mayak said.

The storm canceled many activities including schools on Thursday and Friday and it was responsible for the cancellation of several church services Sunday morning.

Mayak has been observing the weather for about 20 years. He said Sunday evening that the recent storm brought the most snow since the Sunday after Thanksgiving in 1974.

That storm caused the interruption of electrical service for about a week in many areas of the county. It also brought along bitter cold temperatures and high winds.

Mayak said the recent storm could have been a lot worse if the winds would have picked up and the temperatures would have fallen.

"Temperatures were mild — in the mid 20s," he explained.

He said the ground is not frozen. The level of snow is already starting to drop and temperatures are expected to rise in the mid 40s this week.

"We've been lucky over the years," he said about the past several mild winters. He said in the late 1950s there were several bad winters with cold temperatures and drifting snow storms.

The heavy snowfall was too much for a barn roof on Rockwood RD 2.

Sometime Friday evening the weight of the snow brought down the roof on a barn on the Merle and Grace Sumner property.

Prison vendor fair rated successful

Roy Sobina, superintendent of the state correctional institution being built here, said the vendor fair conducted for businesses interested in supplying the prison was very successful.

He said 82 vendors attended the fair, which was held Monday.

"The event provided the forum for a healthy exchange of information between the institution's business office and potential local vendors," he said. "A variety of commodities are needed to operate this large facility, and the institution is very interested in providing business opportunities for local merchants and suppliers."

ent's wife, the former Debra Rhoden, a Meyerdale native, and the couple's three children — David, Laura and Joshua, all students in the Meyerdale Area School District.

James Brocht of the New Cambridge and Rural Fire Department told about how Trooper Mankey had worked with fire departments and emergency aid technicians over the years.

Mankey retired during the past year after a 25-year career with the State Police. His entire career was spent in Somerset County. He served as safety education officer for 23 years, during which time he presented hundreds of programs to the Somerset County school districts. He also devoted many hours to reaching the county youth through other youth activities. These services were rendered in conjunction with other normal routine police duties, while attached to the Somerset County barracks. He became known as "Policeman John" to hundreds of young people who sat in on his school programs.

Mankey was born and raised in Washington, Pa. After high school graduation, he enlisted in the Air Force and spent four years in New York State as an Air Police security officer. Prior to being accepted to the State Police Academy, he was a

Dear Donna,

Greetings! Hope you are staying cool - 100° temperature isn't my idea of fun!

Fran Witte does not have the original Younkin family member portrait [perhaps it is disintegrated by now?] However in April she provided two very old photographs of Mrs. Catherine (Younken) Haupt. - These are in the Spruance Library's Haupt Manuscript Collection. And photocopies of both are enclosed.

I'm clearing my office and trying to get rid of my "pile of paperwork" before I go to Ireland in two weeks - it is supposed to be cool there!

Take Care,

The date you have for Lavila's birth is what Scott had for their marriage date. Which is correct? (I have left your data as gospel but this would be an easy thing to mis-read because of the proximity in dates in records and forms. I think the date is correct but I just don't know where it belongs for certain.)

Lewis Wetzel, INDIAN FIGHTER

Frontier Hero* by C. B. Allman

Colonel Andrew Swearingen, Martin Wetzel, Samuel, James, and Joseph Tomlinson, Ebenezer, Andrew, Silas, and Jonathan Zane, Dr. James and William McMechen, Abraham Rogers, Joseph Biggs, Bazel Duke, Robert Lemon, John Lynn, and John Caldwell. There were fifteen killed and nine wounded belonging to the fort. It is not known how many Indians and British were killed and wounded but they gave up the siege and left the vicinity after burning all the cabins and driving off all the livestock that they could find.

The second Indian attack on Fort Henry was on September 11, 1781, and is known as the last battle of the Revolutionary War. There were forty British soldiers under Captain Pratt and 160 Indians under George Girty; also Joseph Brant, a notorious Tory and Matthew Elliott aided the British and Indians in this attack. Silas Zane was in command of the fort during this siege, in the absence of Captain John Boggs. The fort had about twenty men and several women to fight against this large army. Colonel Ebenezer Zane with his Negro slave, Sam, and his wife, Kate, remained to defend his own cabin. Some of the defenders of the fort were: Lewis and Martin Wetzel, Moses Shepherd, Daniel Sullivan, John Lynn, Andrew Scott, George Greer, a man named Tate, Captain John Wetzel, Andrew and Jonathan Zane; Betty Zane, Lydia Boggs, and Molly Scott were among the women of the fort who rendered invaluable service in saving it from its invaders.*

After several days and nights the Indians and the British again gave up the siege and left the vicinity after again burning all the buildings and taking all the livestock in the vicinity. This was one of the most important battles fought between the Indians and the Whites along the frontier and ranks next in importance to the Battle of Point Pleasant which was fought October 10, 1774. It is said that Lewis Wetzel shot the first Indian in this attack as he rode toward the fort, and that Martin and Lewis Wetzel stood cool as cucumbers on the platform by the portholes picking the redskins off as they came within gunshot. Only one inmate of the fort was wounded during this attack and none were killed, but a large number of Indians and several British were killed and wounded. This was the last time that the British flag was flown in battle in the Revolutionary War.

(4) Attack at Beeler Station

About 1781 Shawnee and Mohawk Indians attacked Fort Beeler in what is now Marshall County, W. Va. Martin Wetzel and a man named Younkens had been made scouts for the fort. Lewis ran across them and accompanied them to the fort. Colonel Beeler expected an attack and was prepared in everything except man power. He needed more men, a rather common need in wartime.

Two chiefs rode toward the fort side by side. They stopped to dismount, when a rifle cracked and one of them fell dead. It was Lewis Wetzel's reply to intended negotiations. Himself safe behind the walls he again played the game according to the simple rules he knew.

The Indians were furious and stormed the place. They tried to dig under the walls. Martin and Lewis saw the dirt moving and watched it carefully. Presently a plumed head appeared and the owner tried to squeeze through. Martin helped him, by sinking his tomahawk in the scalp lock and dragging the dead red up through the hole he had dug. The second Indian, thinking the first safe inside the fort, stuck his head through the hole, to be met with the same reception at the hands of Lewis.

In this manner six Indians were killed, drawn into the fort and thrown aside. The seventh, becoming suspicious, peeped before trying to crawl in and saw the Wetzels waiting with his coming to this point, in company with other men, they were permanently located at the fort. A great many Indians from the Shawnee and Mohawk tribes, who were then stationed about Wheeling and the Flats of Grave creek, came to prowl about the fort to annoy Colonel Beeler in every conceivable way they could, and, if possible, drive him from the dominions, which they claimed the "Great Spirit" had bequeathed unto them. Beeler's station, at that time, was indeed a situation of sadness. The sun rose in the morning, and as its glittering beams gleamed down upon the earth, through the heavy timbers that then clothed the hills and vales of Virginia, its dawning influence came in contact with a solitary fort, standing in the midst of a desolate wilderness. Evening came, and the inmates of Beeler's fort look with eyes expressive of the saddest reluctance to see the sun sink down in the west. The curtain of darkness is drawn over creation and darkness settles around and envelopes the fort. The women and children of this secluded structure shudder with awe to think of the monotony of the night. And truly the nights were terrible. The valley of Grave creek sloped off to the west. The deep, dark valley of Wolf run stretched far to the north. In the darkness and stillness of the night, birds of "evil omen" flew from one valley to the other, and as they passed over the fort they flapped their wings and uttered their unearthly shrieks. In the deep valleys and ravines, on all sides the howls of the wolf, the fierce shrieks of the panther, and the yells of the wild cat could be distinctly heard. The harsh toned voice of the terrible "Red man" could be heard on every hill-top as they echoed and re-echoed their answers to each other. These were the agencies and elements that surrounded Beeler's station in the night time during the primeval ages of Virginia.

During the summer of 1780, it is said that Colonel Beeler became discouraged, and I presume it was no wonder: for where is the man of this day and date that could have faced what Colonel Beeler did, and live?

Now obstacles were constantly being conceived and brought into existence day after day to barricade his pathway, to frustrate and hinder him from accomplishing the great designs he had undertaken.

His enemies were so numerous, and they were so terribly disfigured with evil design, that the lives of Colonel Beeler and his family were constantly endangered whenever they went outside of the fort. Under these terrible circumstances, for Colonel Beeler to establish a colony in this neighborhood presupposed to him the idea that he must have additional aid.

Accordingly, in the dead of winter, 1780, he, accompanied by Tomlinson, of the fort at Moundsville, and Ryerson, of Ryerson's Station, Pa., walked through the deep snow, in the dead of winter, over the mountains of Pennsylvania to the city of Philadelphia. He there laid in a complaint to the chief officers of that state regarding his sad situation in the wilds of Virginia. He requested them to send him assistance. They were moved by his story and agreed to furnish the desired aid. So, in the spring of 1781, fifty-three men, under the command of Captain Jeremiah Long, arrived at Beeler's fort. They assumed the name of "six months men," and their duty was to guard the different forts which were then located at different points in this country, and to pilot and protect men who wished to go from one station to another. Braver and nobler men never lived than were these who composed Captain Long's company. They were all in the prime of manhood, except Captain Long, who was a tolerably old man. They staid in the wilds of Virginia for a number of years, and the greatest respect was manifested toward them by those early settlers whom they then protected. And the services which these six months men rendered were the very instrumentalities which enabled these early frontiersmen to colonize this neighborhood and bring about settlements of civilized people.

During the year 1782, spies were appointed by the different parties throughout this country. Thomas Younkens was appointed a spy for Beeler's Station. Martin Wetzel was appointed by the people at Wetzel's fort to act as a spy in conjunction with the spy at Beeler's Station. These two men were not only well acquainted with the Indians and their language, but also understood thoroughly their customs and places of warfare. The energy, bravery and perseverance these two men possessed did not only secure for them the position of spies, but won them destinies which will live, as history bears on record the account of great deeds and daring feats performed by the heroes of an early frontier. Their history is one repeated scene of combat, bloodshed and massacre with the Indians, and that degree of success which attended them on all occasions and under all circumstances, has gone far toward characterizing them as among the bravest and the men that ever walked the face of the earth.

The duty of Younkens and Wetzel, when acting as Beeler's Station, was to scout through the woods, not the fort, to ascertain, if possible, the exact strength of Indian forces, and to determine whether they were any signs indicative of an attack on the fort.

The year in which Colonel Beeler died, is not known the spot of ground that now contains his smouldering only a few rods distant from where his old fort and graves of many others who had undergone the terrible which surrounded and afflicted the early settlers of distracted neighborhood, can plainly be seen near the

But what a change has taken place in this vicinity they have passed away. One hundred years ago, and could have been seen standing alone in solitude—to-day seen two magnificent church-houses, where men, women and children come up each Sabbath to worship—not an Indian spirit as the Indians once did—but to worship the true living God.

KILLING OF THREE INDIANS AT THE MOUTH OF GRAVE

The sketch of John Wetzel, jr., in another part of this volume, relates his capture the second time by the Indians on his rescue on the last occasion, by an event which took place at the mouth of Grave creek. The event is said to have happened about the spring of 1780. Early the next morning the Indians had captured young Wetzel, they struck him at a point near the mouth of Grave creek, and in the clearing of Mr. Tomlinson. Here they found him and killing one of them put it in a canoe they had stolen of the Indians took possession of the canoe with their hands while the other was busied in swimming the horses a river. It so happened that Isaac Williams, Hamblet and Jacob, a Dutchman, had come down that morning from Wheeling, to look after the cattle, etc., left at the destination. When near the mouth of little Grave creek above, they heard the report of a rifle. "Dad rot!" claimed Mr. Williams, "a Kentuck boat has landed in the creek, and they are shooting my hogs." Quickening in a few minutes they were within a short distance of it when they heard the loud snort of a horse. Kerr, then in the prime of life, and younger than Mr. Williams, was foremost, and reached the bank first. As he looked into the water he saw three Indians standing in a canoe; one was in the bow, and the other in the middle. At the stern lay four rifles and a dead hog; while a fourth Indian was swimming a horse a few rods from the shore. The stern had his paddle in the edge of the water, in the act of showing the canoe from the mouth of the creek river. Before they were aware of his presence, Kerr and shot the Indian in the stern of the boat, who instantly fell into the water. The crack of his rifle had scarcely when Mr. Williams came up and shot the one in the bow also fell overboard. Kerr dropped his own rifle, and that of the Dutchman, shot the remaining Indian. He fell into the water, but still held on to the side of the canoe. So amazed was the last Indian at the fall of his companions, that he never offered to lift one of the rifles lay at his feet, in self-defence, but acted like one bereft of senses. By this time the canoe, impelled by the impetus it by the first Indian, had reached the current of the river and was some rods below the mouth of the creek. Instantly reloaded his gun, and seeing another man lying on the bottom of the canoe, raised it to his face as in the act when he cried out, "Don't shoot, I am a white man." He told him to knock loose the Indian's hand from the side of the canoe, and paddle to the shore. In reply, he said his rifle was broken and he could not. The current, however, set some rods not far from land, on which he jumped ashore. Kerr now aimed his rifle at the Indian on the shore who by this time had reached the middle of the river. He shot struck near him, splashing the water on his face. The Indian seeing the fate of his companions, with a brave cry, leaped from his horse, and swam for the shore, which were the rifles of the four warriors. This was a necessity as well as of daring, for he well knew he could not have returned home without the means of killing game. He soon gained possession of the canoe, unmolested, crossed with the arrow on his own side of the Ohio, mounted the captive horse, and swam to the Indian shore, and with a yell of defiance entered into the woods. The canoe was turned adrift to drift
